Cook-co Ready to Pay Expenses of Insulls' Return

Martin Insull Held in Jail Cell in Ontario, Canada

BROTHER IS MISSING

Samuel Insull Reported To Have Left Paris Hotel

Chicago.—(P)—Cook-co decided today to pay "all reasonable expenses" for the return of Samuel and Martin Insull to Chicago to face charges of embezzlement and larceny.

Emmet Wheelan, president of the county board, announced the decision after appearing before the grand jury that indicted the Insulls in State's Attorney John A. Swanson had asked the jury to investigate what he termed "the refusal of the county to pay expenses of the case."

"The jurors apparently had the impression that the county board was trying to block the investigation, but I assured them of my utmost cooperation," Wheelan said after spending 45 minutes in the jury room.

Wheelan said Swanson had asked for $50,000 expense money for the case, but that the county board would not consider granting that amount. He said he would recommend furnishing about $10,000 to be used in returning Samuel Insull from Europe and Martin from Canada.

Earlier in the day, Swanson issued a statement saying that if Samuel Insull had left Paris he has committed "an overt act."

"If it turns out he has left Paris," Swanson said, "I shall consider it an act putting himself in the position of a fugitive from justice."

Wheelan said in explaining the delay in providing funds that "the state's attorney already has exceeded his appropriation by $41,000 and there is in the comptroller's office $3,500 which was appropriated for bringing back fugitives."

MARTIN IS JAILED

Toronto, Ont.—(P)—John Hampton, "assistant" state's attorney for Cook-co, Illinois, was successful in having Martin Insull, indicted in Chicago for embezzlement, lodged in an Ontario jail, said today Illinois authorities are going to Europe, and will bring back Samuel Insull, former head of the Insull utilities interests.

Samuel Insull, also under indictment in Chicago on charges of embezzlement and larceny, was reported missing today from his Paris residence. Hampton said Chicago authorities will leave for Paris within two or three weeks.

"We hear he has left Paris and gone somewhere else, but we are going to find him and we are going to get him back. I don't know whether I am going over. That will be decided when I get back to Chicago," said Hampton.

Hampton said he would resist bail for Martin Insull, who was held in a jail cell at Barrie, Ontario, while the extradition procedure was begun to secure his extradition.

Hampton planned to return to Chicago today by plane. Detective Sergeant Blase of Chicago will return with him.

Samuel Insull is an American citizen. Martin still retains his British citizenship.

TREATY WITH PORTUGAL

Washington.—(P)—Portugal, to which Samuel Insull has been reported to have gone from France, has an extradition treaty with the United States similar to those existing with other European countries.

Effectuated in 1908, it provides that "persons who may be charged with or may have been convicted of" larceny or embezzlement shall be surrendered "only upon such evidence of criminality, as according to the laws of the place where the fugitive or the person so charged shall be found, would justify his apprehension and commitment for trial if the offense had been there committed."

Finance Body Loans Listed By House Clerk

Report Published Despite Objections Made by Atlee Pomerene

TOTALS 186 MILLION

Milwaukee-co Assured of Payment of $500,000 For Relief

Washington.—(P)—The Reconstruction corporation report for August made public today by South Trimble, clerk of the house of representatives, showed loans totalling $186,209,310 authorized during that month.

The report was given out over the objections of Atlee Pomerene, chairman of the Reconstruction board. It said loans authorized to financial institutions, including insurance companies and railroads, totalled $122,277,641.

Loans authorized to governors of states for relief purposes amounted to $13,931,669, while $15,000,000 was authorized for the Cotton Stabilization corporation and $85,000,000 to the American Cotton Cooperative association. No part of the latter two authorizations had been disbursed up to Sept. 21, the report said.

Pomerene had contended in a formal protest that the publicity provision of the Garner-Warner relief act did not give Trimble authority to make the monthly report on loans public. Trimble released the July report in August, holding that he had no discretion under the law to do otherwise.

Loans to States

States to which relief loans were authorized in Aug. at 3 per cent interest follow: Alabama, $225,000; Illinois, $8,000,000; Louisiana, $1,098,084; Michigan, $1,800,000; North Dakota, $50,000; Ohio, $768,000; and $842,585; South Dakota, $150,000 and Wisconsin, $3,000,000.

The report showed that a total of $8,552,442 authorized to banks and trust companies during the last ten days of July covered by the previous report was cancelled, including $3,800,000 to the Bank of America National Trust and Savings association of San Francisco.

Other authorized loans to financial institutions cancelled between Aug. 1 and Sept. 21 totalled $1,224,700.

Dynamite Found In Wrecked Plant

100 Sticks of Explosive in Ruins of Building at Burlington

Burlington, Wis.—(P)—An unexploded charge of 100 sticks of dynamite was found today in a paper suitcase under the refrigerating machine in the heap of ruins that was the $25,000 milk distributing plant of the Burlington Co-operative Milk association.

Authorities investigating the bombing which destroyed the plant early yesterday said they believed several such charges had been planted throughout the building. The dynamite was discovered by Thorke Peterson, an employee of the plant, one of a crew of 40 men who started work this morning clearing away the debris.

Directors of the association lost no time in preparations for the trial. The contract was let today to L. R. Mangold, a local contractor, and work will start at once.

Farmers of five southeastern Wisconsin counties have been asked to meet at Elkhorn tomorrow night as a demonstration of defiance to gangland's assault on the Wisconsin dairy industry.

Mrs. Robins Believes Husband Was Kidnaped

Washington.—(P)—Mrs. Raymond Robins, wife of Colonel Robins who disappeared Sept. 3, and for whom a nation-wide search has been made, today told prohibition bureau officials she was convinced her husband had been abducted by bootleggers.

Mrs. Robins, who is in Washington as a guest at the White House, conferred for two hours with Amos W. Woodcock, chief of the prohibition bureau.

She later said she was returning to the White House for a talk with President Hoover.

Woodcock said Mrs. Robins had given them no additional information about the disappearance of her husband and that they had been unable to furnish her with any clues.

Non-Partisan Railroad Commission Organizes

New York.—(P)—The Coolidge non-partisan railway commission today held its organization meeting after which former President Calvin Coolidge said the committee would "take up and study the question of transportation."

"This is the national transportation committee formed for the purpose of studying the problems of transportation," he announced.

"The committee has met this morning, organized and engaged quarters and will take up and study the question of transportation for the purpose of making a report in about three months."

FOOTBALL EXTRA!

With most of the Big Ten teams in action against conference opponents, with eastern teams starting their serious schedule and with Appleton and Lawrence engaged in important games, football followers are awaiting their annual fever in anticipation of tomorrow's games.

The Appleton Post-Crescent tomorrow will resume its annual service of reporting Saturday football games in Football Extras immediately after the games are finished. By 6 o'clock tomorrow night complete stories about all the big games and scores of dozens or more minor contests will be offered Post-Crescent readers.

In the past Football Extras have been among the most highly appreciated services of the Post-Crescent. This year they will be even more complete than before. You'll want the football scores Saturday night and you'll find them in the Post-Crescent Extras.

Brother, Sisters Chief Heirs of Smith Reynolds

Albert Walker to Get $50,000 Under Terms of Will Written in 1931

(Copyright, 1932, Associated Press)

New York.—A will executed by Smith Reynolds less than a year ago before he was fatally shot at Winston-Salem, N. C., is to be filed for probate here soon, leaving his entire share of the Reynolds tobacco millions, except for a few specific bequests, to his brother and his two sisters.

From a source close to the Reynolds family it was established today that the will was drawn during the summer of 1931, while the young Reynolds was occupying a Long Island cottage near the summer residence of Libby Holman, Broadway torch singer now under indictment for his murder. He was not yet married to Miss Holman at that time, however, and she is not mentioned in the will.

It was learned that there is a bequest of $50,000 to Smith Reynolds' friend, Albert Walker, who is also at liberty under bail awaiting trial for the murder of Reynolds.

There are also said to be bequests of $50,000 each to Reynolds' first wife, Anne Cannon Reynolds, and their daughter, Anne Cannon Reynolds II.

Reynolds and his first wife were divorced shortly after the will was drawn and it was reported at that time.

Deny Application for Bus Line Certificate

Madison.—(P)—The State Public Service commission today denied the application of the Blumh Cab Co., for a certificate to operate a bus line between Wausau, Tomahawk and Rhinelander. The commission found that rail service between the towns appeared to be reasonably adequate, although it may not be the most convenient. It pointed out that a former bus line over the same route failed because of light traffic.

Can Europe Come Back?

This is the eighteenth of a series of articles on the possibilities of economic recovery in Europe written by H. R. Knickerbocker, noted newspaper writer and investigator, who visited all the countries of Europe in the preparation of the series. The nineteenth article will appear on Saturday.

(Copyright 1932 by New York Evening Post)

Berlin.—The hour has struck for the "come-back" of this country stands today at the threshold of the most economically hopeful period it has experienced since the war.

Politics may stop the clock. Militarism may paralyze confidence. Economic nationalism might conceivably lock Germany up in a self-imposed blockade. No absolute prophecy of immediate recovery is justifiable. But the evidence at the moment is strong that unprecedented conditions for recovery exist.

If Germany comes back Europe comes back. In the whole investigation into the question "Can Europe recover?" no evidence has been so important as the series of factors that conspire today to dictate that Germany is ready to return to prosperity with a suddenness and a velocity that may astonish the world.

It takes more than one long breath simply to name these factors. First of all, Germany pays no more reparations. This is the most important factor of all, for psychologically it determines the national attitude.

German industrial equipment is incomparably the best in Europe. Her labor costs are beneath those of her principal rivals and will now sink still lower.

Germany's Budget Nearly Balanced

Her budget is more nearly balanced than that of most European countries. Her government has avowed unmistakable fidelity to the principles of private capitalism and has promulgated a daring program to stimulate private enterprise.

Her bankruptcies have cleared more than 30,000 concerns from the fields and today with only the strongest firms surviving the number of bankruptcies has sunk to a record low.

Racine Woman Is President Of Librarians

Miss M. Louise Hunt Succeeds Miss Cora Frantz, Kenosha

CONVENTION ENDS

Miss Josephine Hargreave, Ripon, Named Vice President

Miss M. Louise Hunt of the Racine public library was elected president of the Wisconsin library association at the annual business meeting which concluded the convention this morning. She succeeds Miss Cora Frantz of Kenosha.

The new vice president is Miss Josephine Hargreave, Ripon, college librarian. Miss Irene Newman of the department of public instruction at Madison was named secretary, and Miss Dorothy Siebeck, cataloguer at the Eau Claire public library, treasurer.

Besides Miss Frantz, outgoing officers are Miss Natalie Huhn, Oshkosh, vice president; Miss Clara B. Lindley, Waupun, secretary, and Miss Margaret Reynolds, Milwaukee, treasurer.

The convention voted to appoint a committee to work with the policy committee in checking abuses of the certification laws under which librarians work, decided to leave the distribution of the $295 received from the book auction to the discretion of the scholarship fund committee, and thanked the staffs of the Appleton public and college libraries and the Methodist church for their work in connection with the convention.

Children's books should help the child understand the world about him, should stimulate vital, active imagination, and should establish a groundwork of ethics, Miss Jessie Van Cleave, Chicago, a specialist in children's literature, told the librarians this morning.

"Most children can't remember when they started to read, she said, nor what books they first read, but it is obvious that the child takes to reading naturally. Reading is different from the playing of games. In games there is an expression of the doer's ability, while reading requires an ability to interpret other people's thoughts."

The production of children's books, she pointed out, has grown steadily in the past few years.

Week's Recess Ordered In Hobbins' Hearing

Madison.—(P)—A week's recess in the preliminary hearing for William J. Hobbins, president of the defunct Capital City bank, who is charged with accepting deposits for an insolvent institution, was ordered at the conclusion of yesterday's session.

Supreme Judge S. B. Schein is expecting to make rulings on testimony offered yesterday before it is determined whether the state has shown the bank was insolvent on its last day of business, Nov. 10, 1931.

The state offered testimony in an effort to show that the bank's assets, as represented by loans to various individuals, are not as great as the management believed them to be. The defense has been occupied in showing these loans are covered by sufficient collateral and can be converted into liquid assets.

Iowa Bank Bandits are Sought in Three States

Dubuque, Iowa.—(P)—Two unsuccessful bank bandits who escaped the grasp of officers of the Iowa states are being sought today in Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin.

In making their get-away, the men who attempted to hold up the Northwestern Davenport Savings bank yesterday afternoon left two companions behind—one dead and the other seriously wounded by police bullets.

Bank guards routed the bandits from the bank when an assistant cashier operated a burglar protection device in response to a command of "stick-em-up."

Davenport police informed by department radio, cut off escape of the men by forcing the bandits' automobile into a ditch under a barrage of pistol shots. One of the robbers, tentatively identified as Neds W. Mills, of Gary, Ind., fell from the car mortally wounded, and a second man, who refused to reveal his name, was so seriously hurt in the ensuing gun battle that he could not escape.

Nearly 200 Votes Cast In Primary Election Challenged by Sigman

Wheeler Goes Into Lead By One Vote as Re-count Continues

Board Expected to Complete Recheck Tonight or Tomorrow

With only 12 precincts still to be recounted, F. F. Wheeler was leading Samuel Sigman by a single vote in the race for the Republican nomination for district attorney at noon today.

Since the recount started there have been 34 precincts rechecked, giving Wheeler a net loss of 54 votes. Sigman a net loss of 60, and Oscar J. Schmieg the third candidate, the smallest loss, 12. Wheeler lost 107 votes in various precincts and gained 73 in others. Sigman had gains of 28 and losses of 88, while Schmieg had gains of 41 and losses of only 53.

Should the canvassing board fail to find any further changes in the last 12 precincts, then the following would be the results: (This is obtained by subtracting the net losses from the official totals) Wheeler, 5,223; Sigman, 5,222; and Schmieg, 5,169. Schmieg has crept to within 54 votes of the leader.

Since yesterday the canvassing board has found five more uninitiated ballots which it has added to the group of questionable ballots now being held. The board is holding 102 ballots, 43 of which were cast for Wheeler, 32 for Schmieg, and 27 for Sigman. Whether these votes are to be counted will not be determined until the recount has been ended.

Rural Returns Better

Yesterday afternoon and this morning for the first time since the recount started, the canvassing board checked several precincts.

Says Prison Guard Asked His Support

Convict Claims Courson Sought for Favorable Testimony

Jacksonville, Fla.—(P)—A former prison guard accused of murdering Arthur Maillefer by slow torture in a sweat box was described today by James Travis, a convict, as seeking his support after he had seen the New Jersey youth chained in the box.

Travis, who served with Maillefer at the Sunbeam camp, testified at the trial of George W. Courson, former captain of the Sunbeam guards, and Solomon Higginbotham, former guard, that he saw Maillefer placed in the box and later witnessed the removal of his body.

He declared Courson "called me over to him one morning after breakfast and said: 'Travis, I appreciate the attitude you boys have taken in this, but you are on the wrong side of the fence. The gate is wide open for you to get on my side and I'll be in his line and walked away.' Travis added.

"The witness said he came here from Pennsylvania but did not name the town."

C. A. Avriett, counsel for Higginbotham, sought to have Travis sworn clearly how the body of Maillefer hung in the sweat box from a chain which had been placed around his neck and used to strangle him. The witness jangled the chain violently.

Dies at 76

DARWIN P. KINGSLEY

Darwin Kingsley Dies; Coolidge May Succeed Him

Chairman of Board of New York Life Dies of Heart Ailment

New York.—(P)—The name of Calvin Coolidge was being mentioned today as a possible successor to the late Darwin P. Kingsley as chairman of the board of directors of the huge New York Life insurance company.

Kingsley died last night of a heart ailment in his 76th year. He headed a directorate which included former President Coolidge.

Kingsley's proudest title was "insurance man" but during a long, varied career he was a publicist, collector of rare books, patron of the arts and defender of big business.

During his administration, a biography issued by his company pointed out, the New York Life more than doubled in size, the number of policy holders growing from about 1,000,000 to about 2,500,000, and the assets from slightly less than $500,000,000 to nearly $2,000,000,000.

Like Coolidge, he was a Vermonter. From his father's farm at Alburgh, Vt., he went to Burrage academy and the University of Vermont, where he earned part of his expenses by ringing the college bell.

After a year as a school teacher in Denver, he went to Grand Junction, Colo., center of the fruit belt on the western slope of the Rockies, where he bought an interest in the "Grand Junction News," got himself a six-shooter for protection, and jumped into a political crusade. Later he was elected state auditor and insurance commissioner on the Republican ticket.

When his term was up, he accepted a job with New York Life at its Boston office, and his progress varied him into the presidency of the concern in 1907. Desire for more leisure led him to resign the presidency in 1931 to become chairman.

He believed there was poetry in trade.

"There is philosophy in a limited train, beauty in an ocean Greyhound, a perpetual miracle on the long distance telephone, that all men are created equal," he called that a "foolish philosophy."

"Business and scientific progress," he said, "is based on practices and principles that totally negative that great political axiom. Men are not equal in anything from birth to death."

Surviving are the widow and five children. Mrs. Kingsley is the former Josephine I. McCall, daughter of a former president of the New York Life.

Condition of Hunting Victim Held Critical

Oshkosh.—(P)—Condition of Frank Charles, Redgranite, accidentally shot while hunting on Lake Poygan in Winnebago-co Thursday was regarded as critical today.

Charles and Stanley Borzik, also of Redgranite, were injured by the same charge from a shotgun. Borzik was pulling toward himself. The trigger caught on a weed, it was explained. Both men are being treated at a hospital here.

Charles received a large portion of the charge in the chest, and his lungs were penetrated. Borzik was hit in the upper portion of the right arm. He sustained heavy loss of blood.

Irregularities Charged in Certifying Eligibility as Voters

PETITION IS FILED

Board Won't Consider Charges Until it Completes Re-count

Another complication was thrown into the contested primary election race between F. F. Wheeler and Samuel Sigman, Republican candidates for district attorney, when Sigman this morning filed a document challenging almost 200 votes cast in Appleton on the ground of irregularities in the method of certifying eligibility as voters.

The procedure to be followed in recognizing this petition is indefinite. The board placed it on file and will not consider it until the recount is completed, and it is probable arguments will not be heard until Monday.

Sigman charges that almost 300 votes cast in Appleton are illegal because the affidavits certifying to legal residence in the voting precincts are irregular. The petition names the persons whose votes are challenged and also the names of the persons who signed the petitions as freeholders.

Wheeler in Lead

Wheeler was leading by one vote, with 12 precincts still to be counted, when Sigman filed his petition. It created a furore on the recounting board but no time was taken then to study it. Copies were served on Mr. Wheeler and on Oscar J. Schmieg, the third candidate for district attorney.

Specifically Mr. Sigman charged that five affidavits for voters, who had not previously registered, were signed by Mr. Wheeler, as a freeholder, when he was not a resident of the precinct in which the affidavits were filed. He also charged that F. P. Young, C. H. Ender and Joseph Koffend, Jr., each signed one affidavit for a voter in precincts in which they were not residents, and he accuses Alderman H. G. Kittner with signing 10 affidavits used by voters in precincts in which Kittner was not a resident.

Others Questionable

Sigman also alleges that 79 voter affidavits are open to question because the freeholders who signed them supported more than the five affidavits permitted them by law. Among the freeholders charged with this irregularity and the number of affidavits they are alleged to have supported are:

Robert O. Schmidt 7, Lydia Wiekesberg 7, Mrs. Olive Spencer 2, Clara M. Lavan 6, R. J. Manser 15, Henry Tillman 8, J. D. Bushey 5, Theodore Belling 2, Elsie Remley 6, J. Alva Carter 6, Charles Simpson 4, O. N. Johnson 3 and Litta Koffend 4.

Sigman admitted that the first five voters whose affidavits were first in point of time among the number signed by the freeholders should be counted while all of the ballots over the first five are claimed illegal. In several of the above cases, Sigman admits only one freeholder who signed an affidavit violated the law, while the second signer's signature was legal because he was still within the limit of five.

Nineteen voters' names are listed as having cast illegal votes. Sigman charged that the same freeholder who signed the affidavit also acted as the notary to his own signature. The freeholders charged with this offense include: R. H. Bohon, Theodore Brunke, H. Tillman, Theodore Belling and R. J. Manser.

The votes of 30 voters in the second precinct of the Sixth ward are challenged because their affidavits were incomplete and illegal in that either the voter's oath or the freeholder's oath was not made before a notary.

SNOW IN TENNESSEE

Knoxville, Tenn.—(P)—Reports reaching here today said six inches of snow had fallen in the Great Smoky Mountains National park. On the higher peaks it fell to a greater depth.

"SWAP" FOR THINGS YOU NEED

U.S. Bankers Sure Better Times Coming

Elated Over Disappearance Of Panicky Spirit In Business

Los Angeles—(AP)—The nation's bankers see a silver lining in the clouds that have obscured the sun of business prosperity for many months.

Led by their new president, Francis H. Sisson of New York, members of the American Bankers' association express the belief the worst of the depression is over. The fifty-eighth annual convention of the association ended last night.

"The advance that has taken place in prices of stocks, bonds and commodities," Sisson said, "has spelled genuine improvement from the bankers' point of view, and even more reassuring is the disappearing of the panicky spirit of a few months ago."

Tax reduction was asked in a resolution adopted by the gathering.

Describing taxation as the "assault of society on the pocketbook of the forgotten man," Paul Shoup, vice chairman of the Southern Pacific company, delivered the final address before the convention.

"This forgotten man," Shoup said, "is everybody, if he spends any money at all. He can not move his automobile, ride on a train, smoke a cigarette, eat dinner or go to a show without directly or indirectly making his contribution."

Against proposals to address the economic policy commission placed the association on record in opposition to proposals for United Federal control over all commercial banks, in place of the present dual system of state and national banks.

As the alternative, the commission asserted in the report read by its chairman, Rudolph S. Hecht of New Orleans, the incoming second vice president, that extension of the federal reserve system in the commercial banking field would incorporate all the virtues claimed for a unified system.

"It is our conviction," Hecht said, "that the federal reserve system constitutes the most promising instrumentality for building up the kind of a banking structure for the nation that is to be desired. We are in favor of a broadening of the functioning of our commercial banks, both state and national, along sound, coordinated lines under the leadership of the Federal Reserve system."

$35,000 Employed For Scholarships

Approximately $35,000 is being used in scholarships and loans for students of Lawrence college this year, it has been announced. This is an increase of $5,000 over the amount used for this purpose last year. This year the proportion of students being given aid is far greater than in any of the past several years.

Loans have been assigned to 80 students, 15 more than received loans during the entire year last year. Scholarship aid in 1928-29 amounted to $14,000. At the present time $13,000 has been used in this aid. There still are some funds that will not be available until the second semester, when they will be assigned.

In case of both loans and scholarships the majority of the aid is being given to upper class students. It has also been pointed out that in view of the unusually heavy demands for financial aid this year the committee on scholarships and loans has had to watch carefully the financial need and the scholarship of the applicants.

There are three types of loans at the direct or indirect disposal of the college. Some are loans made and administered by the college. Others are controlled by outside agencies, but administered through the college. Still others are controlled and administered by outside agencies, but operate on the basis of the college's recommendation.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

Application for marriage licenses were made today at the office of John E. Hantsch, county clerk, by three couples. They are: Milton J. Giebisch, Appleton, and Gladys Schmidt, Oshkosh; Paul J. Darra, Milwaukee, and Vera Buchanan, Appleton; Carl A. Grimm, Kaukauna, and Gertrude Kopschke, Appleton.

ALLOW $800 IN BILLS

The county board printing committee allowed bills totaling about $800 at a meeting at the courthouse yesterday afternoon. Other routine matters were also transacted.

Swimming Classes for Women Open Next Week

Swimming classes for women under the auspices of Appleton Woman's club will open next Wednesday at the Y. M. C. A. with Mrs. John Mills in charge. Mrs. Mills is a graduate of Colby college, attended Harvard summer school of physical education, and has a Master's degree from Columbia University. She had charge of a swimming class of 500 students at Colby.

Mrs. Mills is a member of the Red Cross life saving corps and a qualified examiner. She is also a member of Camp Councilors Swimming Conference, and passed life saving expert swimming tests under the director of this conference.

Get Twelve Bids on Automatic Stokers

Twelve bids on the proposed installation of automatic stokers for the county courthouse and jail were opened at a meeting of the county board building and grounds committee at the courthouse yesterday. The board will tabulate the bids and later present them to the county board for action at the November meeting. The committee also allowed bills totaling about $400.

Convicts Tell of Brutal Treatment In Florida Camp

More Than Score of Prisoners on Stand in Maillefert Case

Jacksonville, Fla.—(AP)—Tales of brutal treatment accorded Arthur Maillefert, who died in a prison sweatbox with a chain about his neck, were told by stripe-clad convicts as a jury considered murder charges against the two guards blamed in his death today.

More than a score of Maillefert's fellow prisoners at the Sunbeam prison camp where the young convict from New Jersey died await a full term prosecution attorneys to take the witness stand. They were assembled here from prison camps throughout the state following their transfer from Sunbeam, near Jacksonville, after Maillefert's death.

George M. Courson, acting captain of the camp, and Solomon Higginbotham, guard, are on trial for Maillefert's death. The defense contends the convict strangled himself rather than serve a nine year sentence for robbery. But the state contends the camp officers were responsible.

Testimony that Higginbotham said he "would rather kill Maillefert than eat" came from the lips of William Maillefert, brother of the convict for robbery. Roberts also testified Captain Courson said when Maillefert was placed in the sweat box June 1 that he would be kept there "until Christmas—if he ain't dead."

Cleo Drew, another convict, said Courson placed a chain collar around Maillefert's neck and fastened one end to an overhead raft.

Later when Maillefert took a drink of water given him by another convict, Drew testified Higginbotham said, "that chain ain't tight enough; he can still drink water."

Testimony Attacked

All the testimony was subjected to bitter attack by defense attorneys, who contended the convicts had made different statements at a habeas corpus hearing sometime ago when Courson and Higginbotham were released on bonds of $5,000 each.

Drew testified Higginbotham told Courson he would have shot Maillefert if he had not interfered. The camp had not interfered when Maillefert was recaptured after an attempted escape.

W. D. Liggett, an employed laborer, testified Higginbotham threatened "to let these dogs chew you up" when Maillefert was recaptured. He said the convict asked another laborer to go to the convict camp with him "so they won't kill me when they get me back."

The witness said Maillefert was too weak to stand when he was returned to the camp and that he was placed in the sweatbox and chained despite the protests of convicts.

Mrs. Julia Maillefert, mother of the dead convict was among spectators in the court room. She wept silently as the neck chain, the wooden stocks which were fastened to Maillefert's feet, and a barrel in which the state charges he was confined without clothing were introduced as prosecution evidence.

Socialists Hold Two Meets Over Weekend

The Kaukauna local of the Socialist party is sponsoring a campaign meeting for the state and national candidates on the ticket at Little Chute Saturday night. The meeting will be held at Vandenberg hall. The speakers will be Arnold Zander, Two Rivers, candidate for secretary of state, who will discuss "How to Repeal Unemployment"; Roland Beyer, who will discuss the "Fundamentals of Socialism"; and George Van Hoof, who will speak on "The Failure of the Old Parties."

A similar campaign meeting is being sponsored by the Kaukauna local Sunday night at the high school at Freedom. The speakers at this meeting will be Mr. Van Hoof and Mr. Beyer.

Pontiac Car Stolen From Freedom Garage

A report of the theft of a Pontiac coupe, 1928 model, from a garage at Freedom last night was made this morning to Sheriff John Lappen by John Gonnering, route 2, Kaukauna, the owner. The car was dark green in color and had the license number 259883. The sheriff has started a search for the machine.

ONE VOTER'S CHOICE

The Presidential campaign is now entering its final phase. The main position of each side has been disclosed; the general alignment of forces is reasonably clear. Barring the unforeseen and the unpredictable, the independent voter probably knows as much today as he will know on election day about the choice which is opened to him. I am venturing, therefore, to set down here the reasons why, after much hesitation and serious misgiving, the election of Governor Roosevelt now seems to me preferable to the re-election of President Hoover.

That the reader may be under no misapprehension, let me begin by avowing a definite prejudice. I believe, with all due respects for their virtues, their sincerity, and for their specific achievements, that during the eleven years they have been in power the Republicans have pursued a course which has been disastrous to the country. They have, it seems to me, misconceived fundamentally the position of the United States in the post-war world. They adopted a doctrine of isolation which, by withdrawing American co-operation from the work of political reconstruction, brought about a situation where the settlement of the war could neither be enforced nor easily revised. The result has been a period of prolonged instability, which in the last twelve months became so costly and so dangerous to ourselves that the Hoover Administration was forced tacitly to acknowledge the fallacy of isolation and in an oblique manner to let Secretary Stimson take a hand in the liquidation of the war and the maintenance of peace. But for ten years the Republican party proclaimed its conviction that the United States had no active responsibility for and direct interest in the organization of a stable international world.

On this unstable foundation the Republican party for ten years pursued economic policies which would have been contradictory and ruinous under the most favorable conditions. Disregarding the stupendous historic change wrought in our economic life by the transformation of the United States from a debtor to a creditor nation, the Republicans proceeded with the greatest vehemence to expand our exports of manufactured goods, to shut our markets to imports of manufactured goods, to increase our foreign investments. They encouraged foreign customers to buy and export goods to us, and they made it as difficult as possible for customers and debtors to pay. By these policies they sucked half the monetary gold of the world into the United States, and laid the foundation of the great inflation of the Twenties.

I am saying nothing that has not been said dozens of times before. This indictment of Republican post-war policy has been made again and again, and so far as I know, no responsible Republican spokesman has ever attempted to answer it.

This, then, is the main reason why as an independent voter I feel justified in approaching the choice with a distinct prejudice in favor of a change. But, of course, it would be unreasonable to vote for change unless one could feel sufficient confidence in Governor Roosevelt's leadership of the Democrats to believe that he was not jumping out of the frying pan into the fire.

All through the pre-convention campaign and for some weeks following Governor Roosevelt's nomination, the choice seemed to me to be at best a very sour one. Governor Roosevelt went about the business of getting himself nominated in a way which, though not unusual, was disheartening. The Democrats in the House had made a spectacle of themselves. When the time for nominating arrived, the Governor was seen to be doing political business with a number of people whom I, for one, should not like to see exercising influence in the determination of American policies. These circumstances, combined with the fact that the Governor himself had in the past been distinguished more for his amiability than for his grasp of public affairs, raised the gravest possible doubt as to whether in such critical times power could be entrusted to him and his following.

The events of the past two months have done much to allay these fears and to force me at least to revise some of my earlier opinions. It is clear enough, I believe, that those elements in the Democratic party with which Governor Roosevelt did business to obtain delegates have no mortgage on him. Even if one discounts positive assurances on this score, it would be necessary to believe that the character of his campaign. He has not talked like Huey Long and he has not talked like Mr. Hearst, and the men who surround him and advise him are quite plainly the responsible members of his party.

On the score of his own abilities my own judgment has been greatly modified by the manner in which he conducted the Walker hearings. They were a very severe test. For while good speeches can be written for any candidate, there in the Walker hearings he was exposed on all sides and nothing could have saved him except his own capacity to master an exceedingly intricate mass of evidence. That he did master it, that he revealed a most unusual power of seeing what mattered, that he showed poise and judgment and tact, no one would deny. Now the ability to conduct successfully a semi-judicial proceeding of this

Point to Dangers From Handling of Gasoline, Naptha

Commission Lists Deaths Caused by This Medium During August

In an effort to illustrate the danger that lurks in the careless use and handling of naphtha and gasoline, the Industrial commission of Wisconsin, in a special bulletin to Fire Chief George P. McGilligan, points out the deaths of Wisconsin residents during August from this cause:

"Max Selky, 10 years old, of Milwaukee, lighted a match to look into a gasoline tank.

Wayne Berg, seven years old, of Milwaukee, and several other boys of about the same age were playing in an alley with a tomato can partially filled with gasoline. One of the boys threw a lighted match into the can igniting the gasoline. Another tried to kick the can away. The burning gasoline splashed over Wayne and he became a living torch. He died in a hospital.

"Mrs. Sophie Huepeler was cleaning spots of clothing with gasoline near a kitchen stove. The fire in the stove ignited the gasoline vapor and enveloped her in flames.

"Mrs. William Knuth of Denmark cleaned clothes in the basement with naphtha. The fumes were ignited when she lighted a match near the furnace.

"Henry E. Buchta of Milwaukee siphoned gasoline from his automobile tank so that his daughter might clean a dress. While doing so he lighted a cigarette and was burned to death.

"Mrs. James Henderson of Elkhorn put naphtha in her washing machine to clean clothes. When she started the electric motor of the machine flames shot through the air and ignited her clothing.

"H. A. Ohde of Waukesha was out alone in a motor boat. He dropped a lighted cigarette into some gasoline and oil in the engine pit. When an explosion tossed burning brands all about him he leaped overboard and swam to a near-by yard.

"Gasoline and naphtha when exposed evaporate rapidly. The vapors mix with the air and this mixture becomes a deadly explosive. When the mixture is in the right proportion a lighted match or cigarette, a stove fire, a pilot light, an electric spark, a spark from any tool of iron or a static electrical spark resulting from rubbing fabrics, particularly silks or wools, is all that is needed to cause a violent explosion.

"Modern cleaning plants no longer use gasoline or naphtha for dry cleaning but use a much safer solvent. Through fires, deaths, burns and injuries, they have learned the lessons of safety to life and property. The general public seems slow in learning these lessons. Even the sad experience of others, as detailed above, does not drive home the lessons. The individual waits until death and fire invades his own home and family.

"Banish gasoline and naphtha from your homes."

Scratches Pimple; School Girl Dies

Infection Sets in, Causing Death of Dorothy Brooks, Weyauwega

A pimple on her lip which became infected by scratching with her fingernail caused the death of Dorothy Brooks, 14, a student at Weyauwega high school, at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon at New London hospital. The infection set in a week ago, causing the entire chin to swell to enormous proportions. The girl was taken to the hospital early this week.

Survivors are the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Brooks, route 4, Weyauwega; two sisters, Marion and Frances. The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon from the Presbyterian church at Weyauwega with the Rev. Everett Delaware in charge. Burial will take place in Lakeside cemetery, Fremont.

Firemen Called to Telephone Building

The fire department was called out about 9:45 last night to the office of the Wisconsin Telephone company when an alarm was turned in after a workman mistook the exhaust from a gasoline engine for smoke and believed a fire had started. About 7 o'clock this morning the department was called to 814 S. Oneida-st, where it was reported a car was afire. The blaze was put out and the car had left when the department arrived.

35 Offenders Pay $238 in Fines in Municipal Court

Thirty-five lawbreakers paid fines and costs totaling $238.70 in municipal court before Judge Theodore Berg during September, according to the monthly report of William R. Kreiss, municipal court reporter. In addition 12 defendants were sentenced to jail, 4 cases were discharged, one was nolle, and 25 defendants were bound over for trial. The court also handled 36 civil cases and collected $55 in fees and costs.

Fines collected under state laws totaled $22.50 and costs were $34.30. Arrests under state laws were as follows: larceny, 8; drunkenness, 5; having stolen property in possession, 4; assault with intent to do great bodily harm, 4; illegitimacy, 3; driving car without a license, 3; assault and battery, 2; passing worthless checks, 2; and one each for operating a car without consent of the owner, driving a truck with load more than eight feet wide, failing to stop and give assistance after an accident, contributing to the delinquency of a minor, concealing stolen property and using obscene language.

Under city ordinances there was $71 collected in fines; $58 in court costs and $28.50 in officers' fees. Arrests were as follows: parking violations, 24; speeding, 4; reckless driving, 2; disorderly conduct, 2; and one each for drunkenness, passing street signal, failure to have a peddlers' license, and indecent exposure.

There were three arrests for reckless driving and one each for driving a car without a license, passing another car on a curve, and driving a car with four adults in the front seat, under county ordinances. Fines totaled $10 and costs, $15.

Republicans to Hear Hurley in Address at Ripon

Large Delegation From Outagamie-co to Attend Gathering Tomorrow

A large delegation of Appleton Republicans, headed by Robert O. Schmidt, chairman of the Outagamie Republican committee, will go to Ripon tomorrow to hear Patrick J. Hurley, secretary of war, open the Republican presidential campaign in Wisconsin when he delivers an address from the porch of the small schoolhouse on the Ripon college campus where the Republican party was founded 75 years ago.

As the first of a series of nationally known Republican speakers, Secretary Hurley will offer Wisconsin voters their first opportunity to hear directly President Hoover's answer to the expressions of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt on national issues.

Two years ago, Hurley's predecessor, Secretary Good, spoke at the same place on the occasion of the Republican party's seventy-fifth anniversary celebration.

A Ripon reception committee of more than 500 persons recruited from the ranks of Republicans of the Sixth district, will welcome President Hoover's emissary on behalf of Wisconsin Republicans. Delegations from every district in Wisconsin will attend.

J. E. Fitzgibbon, director of the Wisconsin Hoover-Curtis campaign organization, has announced that the Hurley state reception committee will be headed by George Howitt, Milwaukee, Wisconsin state commander of the American Legion, and Col. Roy Farrand, head of St. John's Military academy, Deladell.

Secretary Hurley is the first of a series of prominent national speakers who will talk in Wisconsin during the campaign, Fitzgibbon said.

Among those expected are Senator Hiram Bingham, Arch Coleman, assistant postmaster-general, former Gov. Nestor of North Dakota, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Lee Jahncke, Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur and others.

Holds Conferences With Constituents

Congressman George J. Schneider returned to Appleton last night from the northern part of the state where he had spent several days holding conferences with constituents in Forest and Florencecos. Wednesday he held conferences at Wabeno, Laona and Cranford and Thursday at Newald, Long Lake, Tipler and Florence. Next week he will visit Marinette and Oconto-cos.

Prince at 38

Here is the latest picture of the Prince of Wales, revealing that his 38 years are becoming noticeable in his features. The prince's forehead is becoming deeply lined, and his face has lost much of the boyishness that added to his world popularity. He is shown here as he left England by plane for Copenhagen.

V. Guillou, chief engineer of the Wisconsin Public Service commission, will present Water and Water Service. In the afternoon, F. G. Merkel of Wallace and Tiernan company, Chicago, will discuss Sanitary Quality of Ground Water Supplies, and William U. Gallaher, superintendent of the Appleton plant, will speak on Appleton's Purification Plant and Pumping Station. The convention will close with an inspection of the Appleton waterworks.

Entertainment for the women of the convention will be in charge of the wives of members of the commission and heads of departments. There will be a bridge luncheon at North Shore Country club at noon Tuesday, and a boat ride and auto ride, including a visit to Kimberly Clark and the Fox River Paper company plants, at 9:30 Wednesday morning. The women will attend the annual banquet at Hotel Northern Tuesday evening.

Progress Is Real, Durant Is Convinced

Philosopher Bases Belief On 11 Points of Achievement of Mankind

An emphatic affirmative to the question, "Is Progress Real?" supported by 11 points of achievement of mankind which have survived through all ages, was expressed by Dr. Will Durant, eminent philosopher and lecturer, in his talk before a capacity crowd Thursday night at the Methodist church under the auspices of the Wisconsin Library Association.

These achievements or steps in man's progress he cited in the order of their acquisition and showed how each became the outgrowth of the ones before, gradually building up the complex civilization we have today.

The acquisition of speech was man's first achievement, said Dr. Durant, for when men began to speak they began to be men. The discovery of fire made man master of the dark, obviously a step forward, for it eliminated to some extent the terror with which the soul of primitive man was permeated. The conquest of the animal, achieved through what the speaker expressed as the greatest war man ever fought, was followed closely by agricultural revolution, marking the passage of man from hunting to tilling, perhaps the greatest of all transitions. Civilization and culture, the philosopher stated, began with agriculture, and there soon evolved the home, product of the woman's influence.

Organization Follows
The coming of social organization was the fifth step in man's progress, Dr. Durant went on, showing how the law of supremacy of the strong over the weak gradually gave way to intelligent arbitration. In discussing the establishment of a code of morals, he said, "The sense of justice is the police. There is no international conscience because there are no international police."

He defined the origin of morals as twinges of conscience as a result of deviations from a certain order under which man was forced to live for years. He illustrated his point with the evolution of marriage from its original ceremony of marriage by capture to marriage by purchase, and finally to its present condition of marriage of romantic love. Savage man, he said, knew no such thing as romantic love.

Later steps in the progress of mankind were the discovery of tools, ways of study and methods of observation and experiment, the development of writing, and finally the establishment of education. As the development of writing brought the generations together, proclaimed the speaker, the discovery of printing bound civilizations together.

Case Against Progress
Stating the case against progress, Dr. Durant said because he believed in progress, he felt that he must in all fairness, bring out all the arguments against his belief. He advanced the theories of many great thinkers who held that what we call progress is not progress but change. Aristotle would have called all this merely change, said the speaker. He was forced to agree with the use of the word "change" with him, but he said that now it is with bombs and cannon, still hold the same purpose as before, but there is no progress, only change. Unless the purposes are different, man's knowledge is as slim as before, he added.

The speaker presented Virgil's theory of repetition of identical circumstances, that is, that everything that happens will happen again, and that the progress of times in the infinite past, and therefore there is no progress, but a never ending cycle of circumstances. These arguments were met by Dr. Durant when he showed that through the rise and fall of empires and civilizations, through all the optimism of the eighteenth century followed closely by the pessimism of the nineteenth, there have remained certain self-evident proofs of the progress of mankind, the eleven points of his argument.

More Great Things
"Progress," he said, "is not an increase in happiness. It is an increase in the great things human beings do." He discussed the trend of present day thought, stating that no man dares to be optimistic for fear of being hoisted down. He presented as the greatest cause of the present despondency the world war, and said that it is no wonder that men ask how real this civilization is which "every 30 years turns in its tracks toward barbarism."

HERE IS CANVASSING BOARD RECOUNTING BALLOTS

Here is a picture of the canvassing board, which is in session at the courthouse, recounting the ballots cast in the race for the Republican nomination for district attorney. At noon today, with 34 of the 46 precincts already counted, F. F. Wheeler had a lead of one vote over Samuel Sigman. Oscar J. Schmieske, the third candidate, was only 54 votes behind.

The canvassing board is working in the office of County Judge Fred V. Heinemann, chairman of the board. In the picture at the left of the table are Harry Hoeffel, law partner of Schmieske, and Abraham Sigman, partner of Samuel Sigman. On the right of the table, starting at the left, are Supervisor Mike Jacobs, Appleton, member of the board; Mr. Wheeler, Judge Heinemann, Mr. Sigman and Supervisor Otto Thiessenhusen, Appleton, the third member of the board.

The procedure filed by the board makes it necessary for Judge Heinemann to handle every one of the more than 19,000 ballots cast in the primary election. He checks the ballots—manually being double-checked by both Wheeler and Sigman. After checking the ballot he calls the name of the man who received the vote, and Mr. Jacobs and Mr. Thiessenhusen and A. Sigman, who are keeping tally sheets, mark the votes. At frequent intervals the men who are keeping the tally sheets check to see that they maintain the same totals.

The ballots then are passed to Mr. Hoeffel, who again checks them before he piles them up. Finally, the count in each precinct is checked and double-checked by the entire group.

Board of Health O. K.'s Anti-Toxin

Asks Appleton People to See That Children Receive Treatment

A resolution endorsing the toxin anti-toxin program of the county and suggesting that all Appleton school children receive the treatment was adopted by the board of health at a meeting yesterday at the city hall. The board pointed out that the treatment costs nothing and that parents will do well to have their children immunized against diphtheria, the disease toxin tends to check.

The board also decided to secure necessary equipment for making bacteriological tests of milk, and arrangements were made to instruct Richard Groth, deputy city health officer, on how the tests should be made. It was said tests have been made by the superintendent of the city filtration plant at a cost of $1 each and that there monthly are 60 to 70 tests. The cost of the equipment will be less than the cost of one month's tests in the past.

Reports of the city nurse and deputy health officer were received by the board. The nurse reported visits to 99 homes last month and 148 patients treated. Among other things she did social service and child welfare work in 27 cases and sent out 38 letters and birth certificates. Mrs. Josephine Versteegen is city health nurse.

Award Construction Job to Appleton Firm

The Northwestern Asbestos and Cork Insulation Co., Inc., 603 N. Mason-st., Appleton, has been awarded the contract for insulation of the receiving hospital of the Newberry State hospital, Newberry, Mich. The price was about $4,500 and the work will require about three months time. A Bartelt is secretary and vice president of the company.

Ingress, they still survive in the works of such men as Aristotle and Virgil. Roman government is gone, he said, but Roman poetry, law, and art remain. The structure of our courts today, said the speaker has its foundation in Roman civilization.

America may pass away, he concluded, but American leadership remains. In answer to a question put by Dr. A. A. Trever of Lawrence college, as to the opinion of the speaker in regard to the view of some scientists who hold that the world and all its values and ideals will at some time be destroyed and forgotten, Dr. Durant said:

Teacher Asking Compensation for Loss of Fingers

Kaukauna Instructor Was Injured While Teaching Class

Hearings before F. T. McCormick, chief examiner for the Wisconsin industrial commission, were continued today at the city hall.

Bernard D. Rice, Kaukauna, is seeking compensation for injuries received when he lost several fingers in a saw April 28, 1932. Rice was employed as an instructor. The case was held open pending further decision on extent of permanent injury.

George Holtz, Dale, is asking compensation as the result of body injuries received when working for the A. B. Lynch Co., Milwaukee, on a grading job near Dale. Lynch had several ribs broken when kicked by a foreman. The company claims Holtz had been fired and that he came back and threatened the foreman.

Orlando Mertz, Menasha, seeks compensation for injuries to an eye suffered when a belt broke at the Menasha Wooden Ware plant. The accident happened Feb. 6, 1932. The case was held open until extent of injury to vision could be determined.

Other cases heard were Frank Hubany, Kaukauna, against the Thilmany Pulp and Paper company for injuries suffered when he stumbled over a hose and hurt a knee, and William Kuckenbecker, Neenah, against the Lieber Lumber and Mill Working Company, Neenah, for a strain in his back suffered March 7, 1932 when he fell.

Two Injured in Auto Crash Near Hospital

W. H. Swanson, Neenah, engineer for Kimberly-Clark corporation, and Louis Bruening, 203 E. McKinley-st., were injured in an automobile accident on S. Oneida-st. in front of St. Elizabeth hospital about 10 o'clock Thursday morning.

Mr. Bruening is confined to the hospital with three fractured ribs. Mr. Swanson injured his left arm. As Mr. Swanson, who was driving, attempted to turn out of the path of another car, Mr. Bruening became frightened and grabbed the steering wheel, sending the machine into a telephone pole. The car was badly damaged.

Five Tables in Play At 1st Bridge Meet

Five tables were in play at the Elk's club last night in the first session of the winter tournament to be conducted by the Appleton Contract Bridge association. The team of B. W. Manser and George K. Vitense won first prize playing north and south, and Dr. G. E. Masart and William Roemer were second. Royal LaRose and Donald R. Morrissey were the highest scoring east and west team, and C. R. Miller and L. E. Sugerman were second.

Jewish People Will Celebrate Sacred Holiday

Yom Kippur or Day of Atonement to be Observed Monday

The most sacred and solemn of all Jewish holidays, Yom Kippur, or day of atonement, will be observed by Jewish people of Appleton Monday. From sunset Sunday until sunset Monday the observant Jew neither eats nor drinks, but devotes the day to fervent worship.

The Rev. A. Zussman will be in charge of the service at the synagogue at 5:30 Sunday afternoon. Rabbi A. Wrubel will preach the sermon, and will conduct a service for young people. His sermon subject will be The Kol Nidre Prayer. The services Monday morning will start at 7 o'clock, with a Memorial service at 10 o'clock. Rabbi Wrubel will preach on Joy Mingle with Tears. A service for young people will follow. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon he will preach on Social Responsibilities. The day's services will close with the Neilah service in charge of Mr. Zussman.

Reformed Jews will hold services at Zion temple at 7:30 Sunday evening, 10 o'clock Monday morning, and 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. Perry Nussbaum, a theological student at Hebrew Union college, Cincinnati, Ohio, will preach.

Finding its origin in the Bible, the observance of Yom Kippur became elaborate in its pageantry during the days before the destruction of the Second Temple in Jerusalem. Today Yom Kippur retains only its devotional and solemn religious character. Atonement is the attempt of each Jew to become reconciled with his God and with his fellowmen.

The Day of Atonement climaxes a 10-day period of self-searching penitence. Traditionally Yom Kippur is looked upon as that day upon which God seals the fate of every human being. Prayer, fasting, penitence, and charity serve as man's intermediaries. The Jew seeks forgiveness not only for himself but for all mankind.

Yom Kippur is given over entirely to the House of Worship. The spell of the Kol Nidre tune, of the evening continues unbroken until sunset of the following day. The special penitential prayers, the silent and personal confession of sin, and the sounding of the Shofar or ram's horn are marks of the day.

On the afternoon of the Day of Atonement a Memorial Service of profound simplicity and beauty precedes the Neilah or Concluding Service.

Lawrence Class to Visit Bay Settlement

Members of the paleontology class of Lawrence college will make a field trip to Bay Settlement at Green Bay Saturday afternoon. The trip will be made under the supervision of Professor R. M. Bagge. Next week the Geology class will go to Kaukauna to study rock under the direction of Professor Bagge.

Paul Hesselgraves was elected president of the Touraine club, which is composed of geology students for the purpose of reviewing recent literature on geological subjects. Miss Colores Dohr was elected secretary and treasurer. The club will meet semi-monthly during the school year.

Plan for Meeting of Young People Here

Wilmer Krueger and C. C. Bailey, and probably Phil Ottman, all of Appleton, will go to Milwaukee tomorrow where they will attend a meeting of a state committee planning the annual state young people's convention to be held in Appleton, Nov. 4, 5, and 6. The meeting Saturday is scheduled at the Y. M. C. A. Dr. J. W. Wilson, formerly of Appleton, also will attend the meeting.

Roosevelt-Garner Club to Organize At Kimberly Hall

A Roosevelt-Garner club will be organized at a meeting at 8 o'clock tonight at the village hall at Kimberly. The meeting is called by Paul Lockschmidt, Kimberly's member of the Outagamie County Democratic committee. Stephen D. Balliet, chairman of the committee, will be the speaker. All Democratic candidates for county and state officers are to attend.

Y. M. C. A. Drive Closes; Workers Secure $16,149

Membership Falls Short of Goal, but Cash Value Goes Over Top

The annual Y. M. C. A. membership and financial campaign closed last night with the final report meeting and observation of 998 members valued at $16,149. The goal was 1,100 memberships and $16,000.

The Black division of Col. R. E. Carncross led at the end of the drive in memberships secured and the black flag flies from the top of the association flag pole today. The Black division had 160 memberships. The Yellow division of George E. Johnson was second with 150 members. Blue division of Arthur P. Jensen and Green division of Major G. H. Blum tied for third with 118 each, and the Red division of Forest Muck fourth with 94.

Capt. Lacey Horton's team led for the drive with 50 memberships. Capt. Frank W. Wright was second with 53, Fred Trezise third with 46, O. N. Johnson fourth with 44 and Kenneth Pinkerton fifth with 40.

Last night there were 89 adult memberships reported with a value of $1,077, 55 boys' memberships valued at $202, and 61 sustaining memberships valued at $2,221. The boys were awarded the big sole for the largest report in membership status and Pinkerton's team the money bag for value of memberships.

Founders' day remarks were made by T. R. Jordan of the national council of the Y. M. C. A. and George F. Werner, general secretary. Both of the men, who have met George Williams, founder of the Y. M. C. A., discussed reactions to their acquaintance with him.

The association drive started last week and continued for six days. G. E. Buchanan was general chairman and W. O. Thiede was chairman of the sustaining membership committee. F. J. Harwood, president of the association, took active part in the drive, as did George F. Werner, general secretary. Members of the association employed staff were aides to commanders of the various divisions.

World Day of Prayer Date Set for March 3

The date for the World Day of Prayer which Appleton women have observed annually for a number of years, has been announced as March 3, 1933, by the committee in charge of arrangements. A service has been prepared by Mrs. C. C. Chen, Shanghai, China, and a call to prayer has been formulated by Mrs. Ruth Muskrat Bronson, an American Indian. The local women will follow this program, but will work out details of their own to complete the service.

The World Day of Prayer has been observed the first Friday of Lent for several years.

Third Ward Voters To Organize Club

Organization of a Third Ward Voters club will be effected at a meeting at 8 o'clock Monday evening at the Third ward school. Officers of the club will be elected and committees appointed to plan for the fall and winter activity.

Building Permits

A building permit has been issued by John N. Weiland, building inspector to Ervin Luebke for a residence at 1204 W. Oklahoma-st., cost $3,800.

DEATHS

CHARLES GANSEN
Charles Gansen, 75, who has conducted a drug store at Clintonville for the past 40 years, died about 10 o'clock last night following a week's illness. Mr. Gansen was born in Germany and came to America with his parents when he was 15 years old, and settled in Oshkosh. In 1892 he married Miss Bertha Koch of Sheboygan and the young couple lived in that city for a short time before they moved to Clintonville where they resided since. Survivors are the widow; one son, Frederick, Clintonville, and one brother, Dr. Albert Gansen, Oshkosh. Funeral services are to be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon from the home and interment will be in Graceland cemetery.

PHILIP KAUTH

Philip Kauth, 73, died Friday morning at his home, 1818 S. Kernan-ave. Survivors are the widow; three sons, Edward of Milwaukee, Henry of Wisconsin Rapids and Clarence at home; four daughters, Mrs. Walter Ehen, Mrs. O. A. Anderson, and Mrs. Henry Reuter, Milwaukee; and Mrs. Harry Anderson, Chicago. The funeral will be held at 8 o'clock Monday morning from the Schommer Funeral home, with services at 8:30 at Sacred Heart church. Burial will be in St. Joseph cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home from Saturday morning until the time of the funeral.

Wheeler Again in Lead Over Sigman By Only One Vote

Board Expected to Complete Recheck Tonight Or Tomorrow

where official returns tally perfectly with the recount totals. These include the town of Maine, town of Osborn, town of Maple Creek and the First ward, Seymour. Another peculiarity noticed by the board was the fact that all the ballots in the First ward, Seymour, contained the initials of the clerks which had been made with a rubber stamp. The ballot clerks were A. M. Falck and Orville Fiestadt.

On the whole, the recount reveals, the returns from election boards in the rural precincts are much more accurate than are the returns from the election boards in city precincts.

Judge Fred V. Heinemann, chairman of the canvassing board, said that if the board has three or less precincts to count at the close of work this afternoon, they probably would return tonight and finish the job. In that case the board would adjourn until Monday, when it will hear arguments on various disputed points before definite settlements are made and the board determines the winner.

Must Hear Arguments

If there are more than three precincts to count, however, the board will adjourn until Saturday morning, when it will complete its work. In that case, also, adjournment will be made until Monday before hearing the arguments on the disputed points. At least one election board is to be summoned before the board for questioning, and there also will be arguments on the questionable ballots which have been cast and on a few other votes which the committee has counted but which have been disputed by the opposing candidate.

BACK FROM MEET

Police Chief George T. Prim returned last night from Oshkosh where he had attended the annual convention of the Wisconsin Police Chiefs' association. The convention closed Thursday afternoon after being in session Wednesday and Thursday.

Balliet Again Named Leader Of Democrats

37 of County's Precincts Represented at Organ- ization Meeting

Victory was in the air as the Outagamie Democratic precinct committee was organized at the courthouse last night at one of the most enthusiastic political meetings since the present campaign opened. Stephen D. Balliet was unanimously reelected chairman of the committee. Louis Nelson, Kaukauna, was elected vice chairman, and George Walsh, Appleton, was named treasurer.

There were 37 of the county's 46 precincts represented at the session. Older Democratic leaders declared that this was the first time in more than a score of years that it was possible to get out so large a gathering for the precinct meeting. And not only was there a large gathering, but it was an enthusiastic gathering with almost every committee member presenting suggestions to help put the campaign in Outagamie-co over.

After unanimously adopting a resolution endorsing the national, state, and county tickets, the group named Mrs. W. C. Sullivan, Kaukauna, to direct the organization of Democratic women in the county. The committee accepted the suggestion of F. J. Rooney who pointed out the importance of the female vote. County women will gather early next week at the courthouse to organize. The committee also adopted a resolution urging all citizens to vote the straight Democratic ticket in November to "insure the return of prosperity and good government."

Many Air Views

James Hughes, DePere, Democratic candidate for the assembly from the eighth district; Harry F. McAndrews, Kaukauna, Democratic candidate for district attorney; William Galmbacher, Kaukauna, chairman of the Roosevelt-Garner club in that city; Gustave Keller, Sr., and Mr. Rooney all gave short talks. Grover Falck, a committee man from Seymour, urged that the committee choose a number of the important issues and that all speakers stress these subjects. Mr. McAndrews said he thought more votes could be secured that way than by engaging in an exchange of personalities and abuse.

Mr. Hughes praised Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic nominee for president. He said Roosevelt was a man of ability and integrity, with a personality that insured his election. He pointed to the certainty of a Democratic landslide and the downfall of the Republicans and urged that Outagamie-co Democrats conduct a vigorous campaign.

Federation of Women to Plan Forest Program

Organization Meets at Osh- kosh From Oct 11 to 13

Oshkosh—(P)—The Wisconsin Federation of Women's clubs, to meet here Oct. 11 to 13, will be urged to adopt and to work for a realization of the slogan: "A tree for every child, and a forest for every tree."

The conservation division of the federation hopes to make of the annual meeting an opportunity to give a strong impetus to its program. The division is receiving the support of E. W. Tanker, federal forester in charge of the national forests of the lake states. On the map of Wisconsin there are now six national forest areas, and they present to Tinker and members of the state's women's clubs a vast and undeveloped source of wealth to the lake states region.

In Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan there are 20,000,000 acres on which forests might as well be growing, Tinker reported to the federation conservation division. Assuming that with proper forestation the ultimate income would be only $1 an acre annually, the enrichment of the region would be $20,000,000 a year, and club women have decided that such a sum is worth working for.

The spiritual and artistic value of forests are not being overlooked by the women, but for the moment they are stressing the economic benefits of the woodlands, it was said by Mrs. Edward La Budde, chairman of the federation's conservation division.

"The federation intends to put the spotlight on conservation in all its phases, but at present we want to stress particularly the fact that forest fire prevention is wiser than fire fighting," Mrs. LaBudde said. "We want to make it possible for agencies interested in timberlands to transfer fire fighting funds to payrolls for planting."

Several federation sessions on Oct. 12 will be confined exclusively to consideration of conservation exhibits, including photographs of forestry operations and a display of trees and planting stock, will be on view throughout the convention.

Women's League Plans Radio Program Series

Madison—(P)—The Wisconsin League of Women Voters an- nounced today that in cooperation with the Milwaukee Journal it will sponsor a series of radio programs on which the national party plat- forms will be discussed.

The programs will be broadcast from station WTMJ, Milwaukee, beginning Oct. 11 at 2 p. m. The speakers will be Mrs. Harry E. Thomas, national Republican committeewoman, Mrs. O. V. Fragstein, the lone woman delegate from Wisconsin to the national Democratic convention, and Mrs. Victor L. Berger, prominently identified with the Socialist party.

On Oct. 11, they will discuss the question: "What do the parties propose to do with the liquor question?" On Oct. 18 the question will be, "What do the parties propose to do to prevent a recurrence of the present economic condition?" The Oct. 25 program will be on the question, "What do the parties propose to do about foreign trade and our relations with other countries?"

A fourth program Nov. 1 will feature a discussion of the power referendum to be posted on Nov. 8.

Hair will stretch one-fourth of its length and retract nearly to its original length.

THE WIZARDRY OF RASPUTIN
Legitimate business appears to be picking up.
More men are going back to work. Vacant stores are being rented and remodeled. People are thinking better things, looking better, feeling better.
But did you ever view a picture of innocence and wholesomeness that an imp wasn't lurking in the shadows, leering, diabolic, and preparing to strike?

With improvement in business and returning confidence, lounge lizards are bestirring themselves, get-rich-quick schemers are uncovering old plans, men who like to pose as know-it-alls and advisers of the nation, are seeking the sunlight. Many of them are seeking too the funds of others.
It is a dangerous day for America. The mails are literally loaded with plans, schemes, ideas to make the person who, with a savings account or some other form of wealth is still safe, enter into the great twisting, horrible nightmare of gambling.

One of these sheets-called a "Free Acquaintance Offer" pretending to be issued by the "National Investment Transcript"—whatever that may be—is written in the whirlwind manner that might be adopted by Yellow Kid Weil to part the ordinary suckers from their bankroll.
It all revolves around a man by the name of Congdon called "the mystery man of the hour" and said to have an "incurable indifference to personal profits—and utter selfishness" who has "saved millions for investors in the past three years."

That is an excellent start and reveals the sort of character we have all been seeking—that is one who (1) knows it all, (2) doesn't want to make any profit himself, but (3) wants to see everyone else get the dough.
So Mr. Congdon is written up by a pen that should have composed the signs for Coney Island side-shows.
Congdon can do anything. Where others fail he succeeds. Had he been with Caesar, the dagger of Brutus would never have fallen. Although Congdon had hardly ever seen a farm, right in the very worst conditions he bought one "of 160 acres, stocking it with 115 head of Holstein cattle, sending a herd to fairs all over the country, winning championships, gaining international fame as the breeder of Gypsy Snowflake Sylvia, the perfect cow, raising alfalfa where the department of agriculture said none could be grown, and producing a half mile of Sudan grass where all in authority said none would grow,"—that's the kind of a guy Congdon is.

The write-up is from the pen of Congdon's secretary, if Congdon ever had a secretary. Let us follow this human marvel.
"Congdon would do what he set out to do if he had to wreck the Republic to do it—and, upon achieving success, says, 'To hell with it, I walk away from the whole proposition as he had never had even the slightest interest in it.'"

"Congdon in fact is just like Hannibal. If you told him no one ever crossed the Alps he will cross them. He doesn't want easy, smooth-running businesses, he longs for something shattered and broken so that he may put it together.
Perhaps you never heard of Congdon. That is a reproach upon yourself. Never admit that you do not know this genius. His alleged secretary continues:

"Everybody of the first importance in religion, politics, finance and industry seeks personal interviews with Congdon who, with characteristic versatility, compels all such dignitaries to make definite appointments and forces them to keep them. He, however, goes forth to seek the more intimate association of taxi-drivers, newsboys, telegraph messengers, barbers, waiters and the weak and lowly of the world—all of whom he rates his more intimate and most valued friends—the ones to be served first and best."

And although Congdon knew back in 1929 just what was going to happen and could have made 11 millions alone out of wheat he wouldn't do it because he didn't want any money. Here's the only thing he thought:

"If Congdon sought anything at all out of his unprecedented and unparalleled achievements, it was a cup of black coffee—an hour at a burlesque show—a flock of sinkers at Child's, and then he loafed around all night with people who don't mean a thing in the world and went to his apartment broke to the last thin dime, but was tickled skinny when he heard that a friend of his had made $150,000 on his advice.

With just a little more description we will have a clear picture of this wizard who is all heart:
"Congdon would not walk across the street to make $100 but he would charge the gates of hell with a pint of water for a dish of terrapin with plenty of brandy in his hot mince pie, and his Welsh Rarebit must know its heavy beer but he never took a drink in his life and would rather die than swallow a gill of whisky.

We cannot, but that is what must be the matter with him. Certainly a man who drank his whisky straight couldn't be that crazy.

Anyway the writer has built up "the mystery man of the hour" and the readers, if they believe it, are fumbling in mattresses or breathlessly running to the bank for their savings.

Will they be able to get their money to Congdon on time and before the spell is broken?

The article continues that: "Here, by the grace of God, truth shall be found." The first reaction to an article of this sort is that its very absurdity makes it incapable of misleading anyone, but those bureaus of our government that spend their time trying to prevent the people from being misled and imposed upon declare that the billions wasted, and mostly taken from those who can ill afford the loss, amount to such gigantic sums as to stagger credulity.

Can it really be that such pretenses induce anyone to part with their savings? The answer may probably be found in the fact that those engaged in this sort of business lead pretty easy lives, they sweat not unless it be in a Turkish bath, and they toil not unless it be at writing such a story.

THE LYTTON REPORT
As generally expected the Lytton commission report condemns Japan's progressive military occupation of Manchuria. At the same time it sharply indicts China's governmental weakness and administrative disorders.

The report recommends direct conversations between China and Japan, having as their ultimate object treaty settlements of the points at issue and subject to international advice and assistance in case of disagreement. Such treaties should conform as nearly as possible to the formulas governing international relations and conduct as are laid down by the covenant of the league of nations, the Briand-Kellogg pact and the nine power treaty.

The two major premises in the present demands of China and Japan that, first, the status quo ante shall be restored or, second, that the present Manchurian regime shall be maintained, are condemned as unsatisfactory. The former, being China's demand, would be "no solution," while the latter Japanese plan "does not appear to be compatible with fundamental principles existing in international obligations nor with good understanding between the two countries upon which peace in the far east depends."

The Lytton commission does, however, emphasize the need for international co-operation in the internal reconstruction of China as a final requisite for any satisfactory solution. It has been China's disorder, the chronic civil wars, graft and corruption among its leaders, that provided the opportunity for Japanese entry into Manchuria, ostensibly to restore conditions of law and order, but really for the purpose of acquiring Manchuria's natural resources and markets if Japan, with her teeming millions, is to survive.

In any event the situation is extremely interesting, involving as it does the whole future of international organization for peace. More than any other question that has heretofore come up for discussion, will the Manchurian problem bring into bold relief the frank and plain-spoken statement of President de Valera of the Irish Free State in his opening address as chairman of the league council, that "the league deals effectively only with minor matters. Vital problems are shelved, postponed or ignored. . . . Powerful nations can paralyze the league's economic action."

It is easy to envisage many influential league representatives furtively taking stock of their surroundings before stepping gingerly around the corner to face the Manchurian issue, when it comes up for consideration.

The league is not bound to adopt its commission's report. If it does not, it will but confirm the opinion now generally held that the league is impotent to deal with major issues, as so bluntly put by Mr. de Valera. If the report is accepted with likelihood of Japanese repudiation and defiance, the world's machinery for peace will be put to its severest test. In either case the fate of the league is in delicate balance.

PROBABLY nothing is more deadly than the news (they call it news) which is issued forth from the football headquarters of American colleges each fall during practice sessions . . . unless it's the same sort of hokey which is issued by ball clubs during their pre-season practice sessions . . . yet, at the same time, nothing is more avidly read or eagerly sought after than this same sort of information . . . the stories can, each year, be written with a rubber stamp, with a few changes of names . . . y'know: "Coach McSmash of Scram University drove his team hard in scrimmage last night in preparation for the annual game with Coma College. Coach McSmash issued a very gloomy report about the condition of his team. 'Nobody can catch our run, pass, tackle or block,' moaned Coach McSmash. 'In fact, I have to show my team how to put on its uniforms. Coma will beat us by at least fifty touchdowns.' Coach McSmash will see his team win, but the next week, out comes the same story . . . yet just TRY to keep that sort of information away from a football nut . . . and who isn't . . . it's like taking dope away from an addict . . .

MAN AND DOG

"Let's go hunting!" "Right!" he said: "I'll get my faded coat of red, My peaked cap; my leather belt; My mittens interlined with felt; My boots, my socks, my trousers dun, My shells, my double-barreled gun, And in a half an hour or so With you I'll be prepared to go."

From cellar to the garret ran A very much bewildered man In search of curious bits of gear. Required when hunting days appear His wife and children flew about To get the needed raiment out. But while they rushed from floor to floor The dog lay sleeping by the door.

Mankind is a slave to curious dress And things 'tis useful to possess. With every change that may appear Poor man requires a change of gear. Behold his dog! Asleep! Content! Prepared for any new event, And when his master's voice is heard He's up and ready at the word. (Copyright, 1932, Edgar A. Guest)

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
Friday, Oct. 11, 1907

A marriage license was issued to Nicholas Kolgen, Dale, and Elizabeth Schwindler, Appleton.

A private choral society including about 20 families in the neighborhood of upper Prospect-st and Front-st, was being organized.

Mr. and Mrs. George McNamee and family expected to leave Appleton about Dec. 1 for Minneapolis, Minn., where they were to make their future home.

Mrs. Mary Hawley had returned from a six week's visit with relatives and friends at Sterling, Ill.

Mrs. W. B. Murphy entertained a number of friends at cards at her home on E. College-ave the previous afternoon.

William Arndt, Jr., left the previous Monday for Minneapolis, Minn., where he was to spend the winter.

N. C. Schommer, one of the pioneer furniture men of the city was to discontinue business as a furniture dealer and open an undertaking parlor.

Announcements were received that morning of the marriage of Miss Mary Underwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis Underwood, Wausau, formerly of Appleton, to Lawrence Staley Williams, which took place at the home of the bride's parents Oct. 9.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

KEROSENE FOR CHIGGERS
Pulex penetrans, chigoe, chigger, jigger, sand flea, rhinoceros, is a wee sma' insect, so very small that it is hard to see with the naked eye, in fact it is little larger than the famous Acanus scabiei which is responsible for old fashioned, severe year itch. Like the itch mite the chigger burrows into the skin, preferably about the toes or the tender skin of feet and legs unaccustomed to exposure. Of course it is the female of the species that causes the trouble. Like Mrs. Acanus she digs in when she is preparing for the coming of her brood of little mites.

The chigger pierces the skin in an oblique direction and all but the last two segments of the brownish red egg shaped insect becomes embedded in the skin. Great irritation results, swelling sometimes an abscess and sometimes serious lymphangitis or blood poisoning.
If you can see the chigger by means of a magnifying lens, the best treatment is extraction with a heated needle, which kills the insect and its eggs. The wound which this leaves should be treated antiseptically say with a hot wet dressing of borax acid solution for while and then some simple sterile ointment for a day or two.

If you recognize the nature of the attack before the chiggers get dug in, one of the best remedies is kerosene (coal oil) kept applied for an hour. This kills the insect with out too greatly irritating your skin. The kerosene should be kept applied constantly, or if it is possible the affected surface immersed in it for half an hour or longer.

In chigger regions it is necessary to sweep accumulations of dust from walls and floors, and to use insecticide powder such as pyrethrum freely. The application of odorless lotions to the skin tends to repel chiggers just as it repels mosquitoes. A mixture of equal parts of olive oil, oil of tar, oil of cedar and oil of citronella makes a good mosquito dose and offers some protection against chiggers.
A drop of turpentine on the spot, or even a quid of chewing tobacco discourages the burrowing propensity of a chigger, but the kerosene treatment is the best all round remedy, provided the person using it takes care to avoid proximity of flame.

And then the zoo man added, "Say, 'tis almost at the end of day. Why don't you Tynies also sleep? I'll watch o'er all of you."
"I'm not tired, so don't you fret. A good night's rest you all can get." The Tynies agreed it was a real smart thing to do.

At dawn they woke up feeling great. The zoo man shouted, "If you'll wait I'll fix some dandy pancakes. Then, a brand-new ride you'll have!"
The whole bunch sat upon the ground and Mister Zoo Man came round and gave each one a little plate, with pancakes piled up high.

They ate until they'd had enough. The zoo man said, "My, how you stuff! Now, if you're through, lads, come with me. I own a big flatcar. If you all wish to ride on it, there's room enough for all to sit. I'll hitch some little wild beasts up and they will pull you fat."

The flatcar was a sight to see. Said Coppy, "This appeals to me!" "All right," replied the zoo man. "Hop aboard, you Tynies!" And then he hitched strange beasts up tight and everything seemed quite all right. The happy lads were shortly on their way to see new sights.

YANKS WIN IN ARGONNE
On Oct. 7, 1918, Americans won a hot battle for possession of the north end of the Argonne forest, taking Chatelet-Chéhery and the commanding positions on the Aisne. The British advanced on a four-mile front north of the Scarpe and captured Oppy and Blache-St. Vaast.

The French took Berry-au-Bac and a French naval division entered Beaur.

HARD TO KEEP
Fort Worth, Texas—E. P. Elmer was wanted for robbery of a couple here. He was found in Sioux City, Ia., and, at the request of Fort Worth officials, was arrested. He crossed up the cops of that city, however, and escaped from their clutches three times. Finally Deputy Sheriff Frank Rimmer was sent up to Sioux City to get Elmer. He found him and started back. Elmer, however, hopped out of a bus window and successfully escaped again.

Can Europe Come Back?

This is the eighteenth of a series of articles on the possibilities of economic recovery in Europe written by H. K. Knickerbocker, noted newspaper writer and investigator, who visited all the countries of Europe in the preparation of the series. The nineteenth article will appear on Saturday.

aged political forces of private capitalism have returned to dominance in Germany.

Incomparably the most effective of all these factors is the settlement of the reparations problem. The bare recital of the figures involved is impressive. Just eleven years ago the Paris Conference demanded of Germany $56,000,000,000 reparations, or slightly more than the entire estimated national wealth of the country at that time. Through the London Conference, the Ruhr occupation, the Dawes Plan this fantastic sum was pared down to the Young Plan total of about $10,000,000,000. Lausanne cut this to the insignificant remnant of $750,000,000, which need only be paid when the world credit market is willing to take up that amount of German bonds.

Gains from Financial Adjustment

What the fiscal gains to the German Government are from the double process of the inflation of 1919-1924, and the reparations annulment of 1932 may be appreciated by a consideration of the following seldom cited figures.

The United States had a public debt of $1,225,000,000 in 1913. The war brought our debt up to $23,575,000,000 in 1921. It is today $19,000,000,000, or about $15 per capita. This is seventeen times the pre-war debt.

England had a public debt of $3,530,000,000 in 1913. The war brought it up to $28,000,000,000 in 1919. The devaluation of sterling has brought it down today in terms of dollars to $25,000,000,000, or about $600 per capita. This is eight times the pre-war debt.

France had a public debt of $6,500,000,000 in 1913. The war brought it up to $57,000,000,000 in 1919. By inflation France brought her debt down to $14,000,000,000 today or $340 per capita. This is about twice the pre-war debt.

Germany had a public debt of $5,200,000,000 in 1913. The war brought it up to $49,000,000,000 in 1919, not counting reparations. By inflation Germany brought her debt down to $2,500,000,000 today, or $40 per capita, and since reparations have been annulled this is the actual sum of her public debt. Even if the insignificant $750,000,000 of the Lausanne settlement is added, it only amounts to $3,250,000,000. Young plan payments would have brought the whole German public debt up to about the size of the French debt. But at its present figure Germany's public debt is less than one-half her pre-war debt.

Public Debt Below Pre-War Total

Thus as a result of the war the American public debt today is seventeen times pre-war; the British is eight times pre-war; the French is twice pre-war, while the German is one-half of pre-war. Furthermore, according to German figures the total public debt of the Reich, the states and the communes is today around $5,000,000,000, as compared with $8,000,000,000 before the war.

There is no escaping the conclusion that the German public debt position as a result of the reparations cancellation is vastly better than that of America, England or France. America, whom Europe charges with having enriched herself through the war, came out of it with a public debt that had increased more than the debt of any other participant. On the basis of the public debt alone, Germany came out best, France the next best and the two participants who had the least stake in the struggle, America and England, came out the worst.

Whatever troubles the German Government may have had with its budget under reparations, the fact of this enormously favorable change in her debt position today is enough to insure German industry a considerable advantage in the competition for markets that will ensue in the race for prosperity. While 25 per cent of American Federal taxes go to service and reduce the debt and 33 per cent of British and 30 per cent of French taxes are devoted to that end, only 5 per cent of German taxes are required for the interest on the inconsiderable debt of the Reich. Lausanne and this factor is found today in the fact that the combined budgets of the Reich, states and communes amounting to around $5,000,000,000, at this moment of unparalleled unemployment show a total deficit estimated at not more than $250,000,000.

Changes Psychology

But the fact that Germany has been at once relieved of paying around $400,000,000 a year is nothing compared to the psychological value of having got rid of the tribute. Until Lausanne it was unpatriotic to be prosperous. Before Lausanne Germany had to prove that she was doing her best to pay reparations, but could not pay. This was a formula that automatically strangled private initiative. It was that the gain that might be achieved through national prosperity would be more than compensated by the moral loss of having to render tribute to the enemy. Pessimism became the German religion. The desire to be rid of reparations was so strong that it smothered the normal desire for profits. Today it is no longer necessary for Germany to try to prove that she cannot pay reparations. For thirteen years the German Samson threatened to pull down the temple of capitalism if he was not set free. Today he is free. Yet the habit of thirteen years is hard to break and there still persists a poisonous residue of the old attitude in the desire of a considerable group in Germany to prove now that she cannot pay her private debts abroad.

The national Socialists, also, robbed of their most potent campaign cry of "No more tribute," are now endeavoring to belittle the results of Lausanne, and their propaganda is able to make $750,000,000 look quite as large to the man in the street as $10,000,000,000. But the man in the street is not decisive for economic enterprise.

Business leaders are perfectly aware of the real achievement of Lausanne, and the chronic German bankruptcy propagandists are not likely to gain control of policy. The gain that Germany may achieve today through a sincere effort at national prosperity is incomparably greater than the doubtful gains that might be achieved through defaulting on her private obligations, and responsible Germany is acting accordingly.

Next to the riddance from reparations, the most important factor in German recovery is the quality of her industrial equipment. From 1919 to 1924, through the inflation, German industry relieved itself of all its debt burden. From 1924 to 1929 it borrowed abroad most of this huge sum to modernizing its equipment. Today, in the opinion of every expert observer, there is no country in the world, not even excepting the United States, that has a superior industrial apparatus. The German steel plants are reckoned by American steel men as better than any except a very few of the last plants erected in the United States during the end phase of the prosperity boom.

British textile experts say the German mills are more modern and efficient than anything in Lancashire. German public utilities and electrical plants, her machine plants, her chemical industry are without rivals on the Continent.

Cheap Labor Means Super Factories

Today these superb plants are so manned by the cheapest yet most highly skilled labor in Europe. For the German wage reductions that began with Brünnin's cuts of 10 per cent in 1921 have been radically extended under the Papen economic edicts and the level this winter will be around 30 per cent lower than that of 1930.

This is a world record in wage reductions. The International Labor Office statistics indicate that from 1923 to date hourly wages of skilled workers in the United States sank by 8 per cent; in England by 3 per cent; in Italy by 10 per cent; in Poland by 1 per cent, while in France they actually increased by 2 per cent and in Czechoslovakia by 1 per cent. But in Germany they will have been reduced under the new regime by 30 per cent.

In absolute sums this means that the German skilled worker will receive an average of around seven cents an hour; the unskilled worker around thirteen cents an hour. This puts the German wage rate below that of any other important industrial country in Europe. Taking forty hours as the average week's labor under present conditions, the German skilled worker in an automobile plant, for example, will earn $6.40 a week, or just about the daily wage of an unskilled hand in Ford's Detroit plant.

What an immense advantage this gives German industry in the struggle for export markets is plain when one considers the German estimate that in the total cost of manufacture around 60 per cent goes to labor. With this degree of cheapened costs the German export industry should be able to climb many of the lofty tariff walls erected in the last two years of nationalist customs policy.

Trades Unions' Hold Broken

But to accomplish wage cuts of such intensity, bringing the income of employed labor down to a level about equal to the German dole for unemployed labor in 1929, it was necessary to take a step of even more fundamental importance to the German economic future. It was necessary to break the hold of the trade unions. And to break their hold it was necessary first to break the political control of the Social Democratic Party.

Under the Papen regime a Reichswehr lieutenant and five men accomplished in an hour what the combined manufacturers' associations of Germany and all the bankers and business men had failed to accomplish in more than a decade. The military literally threw out of office the Socialist governors of Prussia. Thirteen years of office holding had softened the Socialists. They had the 60,000 Prussian police and quantities of legal justification to help them slay in power, but they lay down under the blow. Not a trade union moved for a general strike. Not a deed was heard from the Republican "union front."

They saved Germany from civil war. Today wage contracts which hitherto have had the force of law and which hitherto have presented an immovable obstacle to the lowering of wages are virtually abolished. Chancellor von Papen nullified them by his decree providing that any concern "whose existence is threatened by the perpetuation of the contract wage schedule" may cut wages to a point temporarily fixed at 20 per cent beneath contract level.

For the first time since the war one of the essential principles of free capitalist economy had been restored in Germany: the principle of flexible wages. The chief gain of union labor in a generation of struggle had been wiped out overnight.

Whatever its social aspects, from the point of view of capitalist economics it is the most fundamentally important economic step that any government in Germany has taken in the crisis, and together with the other measures of the Papen economic program which deserve detailed description later it promises to give this country a running start in the race for prosperity.

THEY CALL IT THE WORLD'S FINEST COFFEE... AND HERE IS THE REASON

Hills Bros' patented Controlled Roasting process roasts in a different way

No burnt coffee, no not-quite-roasted coffee... every berry developed to perfection

GROUND RIGHT TO TASTE RIGHT

Hills Bros. Coffee is correctly ground for best results by drip process or any other method.

Peanut kernels, right out of the shell, are sometimes scorched; and others are almost raw. It's a matter of roasting. And it's the same with coffee.

Bulk-roasted coffees are apt to be underdone or overdone... it's so difficult to control big batches. At best, it is only a guess as to how each lot will turn out.

Hills Bros. invented and patented a process that roasts a little at a time... as the blend flows evenly, continuously through the roasters. Every berry is brought to the peak of perfection! None is underdone nor overdone.

You can detect the difference that Controlled Roasting makes! Your taste tells you that you have never known such mellow flavor. And you haven't! For no other coffee is roasted the same way.

Hills Bros. Coffee is vacuum-packed, and can't go stale! The vacuum process of packing coffee is the only method that fully preserves coffee freshness — the air is removed from the can and kept out. It was originated by Hills Bros. over thirty years ago. There is no magic about a vacuum can — it will not make poor coffee good, but it will keep good coffee fresh.

Make some Hills Bros. Coffee, without saying a word to your family. Then listen to them praise you as a coffee-maker! Ask for Hills Bros. Coffee by name, and look for the Arab trade-mark on the can.

Leader of B. P. W. to Visit Here

MRS. Geline Mac Donald Bowman, Richmond, Va., president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, will be guest of honor at a 7 o'clock dinner next Wednesday night at North Shore Country club at which the Appleton club will be hostess. Business and Professional Women's clubs of Green Bay, Kaukauna, New London, Neenah, and Menasha, have been invited to attend the dinner, and a special invitation has been issued all women's clubs of Appleton.

Miss Gertrude Mc Guine, Wausau, state president, will be present, as will Linda Hollenbeck, Appleton, first vice president of the state federation. Mrs. R. N. Clapp, president of the Appleton club, will preside at the dinner.

Mrs. Bowman, a prominent and successful business woman, made her advent in the business world with practically no business training. Her conspicuous success as a volunteer war worker selling Liberty bonds and war savings stamps attracted the attention of Col. Thomas B. Mc Adams, who was vice president of the Merchant's National Bank and 1st president of the American Bankers' Association.

When the war was over he offered her an opportunity to organize a woman's department in his bank, and thus she obtained three years of banking experience. During that period her duties called for an extensive use of direct mail advertising in which she became much interested.

Libraries Put Too Much Into Fiction, Claim

Give Scholarly Element of Public More Books They Want, Says Utley

Too much money is being spent by libraries on modern fiction that cannot stand up under the test of time, C. E. Utley of Newberry library in Chicago told members of the Wisconsin Library association at a luncheon at North Shore Country club Thursday noon.

W. C. Hewitt, trustee of the Oshkosh library, spoke on the Trustee's Point-of-View.

With one-third of the 10 million dollars spent annually on books in the United States going into fiction, Mr. Utley suggested that libraries hold to the policy of refusing to put modern fiction on the shelves until it has been out a year.

"In this way," he said, "more money could be used to give the more scholarly and dignified element of the public the books they desire. We must face the fact that everything we do is not justified, and libraries have been criticized for trying to give quantity instead of quality. We could give better quality if only we would recognize that the libraries are spending too much money on fiction. Fiction should be selected with greater care, and by catering to a smaller part of the public we can give the library the dignified place it should have."

The pessimism of librarians, he said, is based on the doubt that the library is a stabilizing agency. Whether or not it is a stabilizing influence, he said, depends upon the personnel of the staff, the personality of the librarian and her assistants.

Library Is Impartial
"We are doing satisfactorily and profitably a number of things," he said. Our chief asset is that we are impartial. The library never takes sides. It collects literature impartially and gives it out impartially.

"We've helped the schools, taught them to get away from the one textbook idea and use the supplementary material which we provide."

T. H. Ryan, president of the Appleton library board, questioned whether the purpose of the library is to lead the public or to fill the demand of the public. He expressed the opinion that the library should instruct rather than amuse, that it really should exert good home influences.

Mr. Hewitt, speaking from his position as a trustee, described the type of librarian that should be at the head of these institutions. Ability in the realm of business administration of the library building, a wide enough intellectual culture to know the realms from which books can be chosen, and sufficient knowledge of human nature to be able to deal with the needs of the people, were the requisites he named.

Miss Mary de Jonge, reference librarian at Appleton public library, was in charge of the arrangements for the luncheon.

Blames Detective Yarns
Oklahoma City—From homes of members of his congregation, the Rev. C. C. Nye, pastor of Calvary Baptist tabernacle, is gathering detective and crime story magazines, on which he blames the burglary charge pending against his 19-year-old son, Warren. Sunday night, the pastor plans a bonfire of the magazines in front of his church after preaching on "a dime a dance, or the cheapness of going to hell."

The Buried Drink
Indianapolis—Police had to diagram the method of liquor dispensing they found here. An eight-gallon whiskey keg was buried in the ground. Two copper pipes led to a garage, where one was attached to a bicycle pump. Air was pumped into the keg, after which the whiskey could be drawn as needed.

Writer Fights Payment Of Bill Against His Wife

New York — (P)—A considerable number of married men, and their wives, and the merchants where those wives run bills, will follow with interest the action of Clarence Buddington Kelland, the writer, in the matter of a bill of $3,313 which he proposes not to pay for if he can help it.

The bill is from Hattie Carnegie, Inc., dressmaker, and purports to be for purchases made by Mrs. Kelland between Feb. 27, 1931, and the same day in 1932.

Mr. Kelland argues in a supreme court action which the concern instituted to collect the amount of the bill, that he is not liable for its payment because the articles purchased were not "necessaries."

But further than that, he sets forth that something should be done to discourage firms from permitting women to run large bills in the belief that the husbands have the money and can pay for them. His fight, he states, is against the practice of "plying" women to buy goods they do not need.

Mr. Kelland wants to know by what line of reasoning a firm could believe that his financial condition at any time would justify a characterization of hose at $6.50 a pair, dresses at $225 and $250, perfume at $25 and a cloth coat at $420 as "necessaries for my wife."

He said that in the period covered by the bill he gave his wife $7,000, which seemed to him sufficient for her needs.

Mrs. Kelland, supporting her husband, stated that the purchases were made with the understanding that she was to be billed, and not her husband. She added that "she thought at the time" she would be able to make payment, but that "events have altered conditions."

She said efforts to arrange payments by instalments had been unsuccessful.

Kelland fought a suit in 1930 on somewhat different grounds. The Salon de Trousseau, Inc., sued to recover $4,650 for linens. At that time the author said his wife had placed a small order and that the firm had delivered very much more.

An effort by Hattie Carnegie, Inc. to have summary judgment given against Kelland was denied by the court yesterday, and the case was set for later trial.

Menasha Meets Oconto Falls—Neenah Plays Sturgeon Bay

Menasha—Menasha and Neenah high school football teams are ready for Northwestern Wisconsin conference battles, Menasha against Oconto Falls at Buttes des Morts field Friday evening and Neenah against Sturgeon Bay at the new Neenah athletic field Saturday afternoon.

The Menasha gridders, champions last year, lost to West DePere in their league opener last week. Their game will start at 8 o'clock.

Intensive drills in offense have been directed by Coach Nathan Calder through the past week. The probable starting lineup will be Schneider at center with Dame and Wideman at guards, Merkley and co-captain Arndt at tackles, Leopold and Snyder at ends, co-captain Beattie at quarter, Novakofski and Ankilam at halves and Makofski at fullback.

A pep meeting in preparation for the game, was conducted by Menasha high school students in an assembly session Friday morning.

The Neenah-Sturgeon Bay tilt will start at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon with McAndrews of Kaukauna and Pickett of Appleton officiating.

Sturgeon Bay already has played three games this season, playing Kaukauna to a scoreless tie, and losing to both Kaukauna and Manitowish. Neenah has played two games and won both, defeating Two Rivers and W. De Pere.

Coach Ole Jorgensen does not intend making any changes in his original lineup.

Principal John Holzman stated Thursday that there would be no arrangements outside the field fence, as arrangements have been made with the local police department to keep boys away. At the last game there were several hundred people watching the game from outside the grounds.

The high school band, under the direction of Lester Mals, will give a concert during intermission.

Christopher, Larson Set Pace in Bowling

Neenah—J. Larson and A. Christopher raced for high individual honors in Commercial league bowling on Neenah alleys Wednesday evening, the former collecting 643 on games of 244, 188, and 211 while the latter scored high individual game with 271 and chalked up a 642 total. H. Thermanen scored 617, Kramer, 613; J. Pingel 600 with second high individual game of 351, and Gruet, 342.

High team game and series with B11, 988, 966 for a total of 2,895 pins. Kruegers won three games from the Twin City Bottling company while the Twin City Cleaners took a pair from the Kramer Meats.

Kolbe Florals won two games from the Whiting Paper company; Weinke Grocers won two from the Badger Paints and the Wisconsin Lumber defeated the Draheim Sports in two out of three games.

Plan Campaign On Diphtheria

Authorities Seek to Immunize Every Child In Neenah

Neenah—A diphtheria preventative campaign will be conducted here late this month and early in November, designed for the immunization of every school child and pre-school child in the city, according to Dr. M. N. Pitz, city health officer.

Toxin antitoxin clinics will be held and tentative dates are Oct. 20 and 27 and Nov. 3 at the Roosevelt school; and Oct. 21 and 28 and Nov. 4 at the Kimberly school. The clinics will be open to all school children but are planned particularly for the benefit of children of pre-school age.

In a statement Thursday Dr. Pitz stated: "Incidence of diphtheria in communities where pre-school children were immunized has been markedly reduced, authentic statistics show. We hope every child more than six months of age and who is not attending school will receive this protection."

Catarrhal Deafness Can Be Relieved.

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness or head noises due to catarrh will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can usually be successfully treated at home by an internal medicine that in many instances has effected relief after other treatments have failed.

Secure from Schlitz Bros. Co. or your druggist one ounce of Parmit (Double Strength). Take this home and add 1 pint hot water and a little sugar. A tablespoonful four times a day should stop distressing catarrhal head noises, improve hearing, make breathing easier and dry up mucous discharge. All catarrh sufferers need Parmit. Adv.

Kaukauna Grid Squad Set for Game at Oconto

Coach Little's High School Team Seeks Third Conference Win

Kaukauna—Coach Paul E. Little and his Kaukauna high school grid-ers will invade Oconto Saturday seeking revenge for a 45 to 6 drubbing handed to Coach Little's first Kaukauna high school eleven. There are 29 players who will trek to the northern city.

Friday evening the squad will receive 30 minutes of signal drill to complete the week's practice sessions. The Orange and Blacks have weathered successfully their first two games of the Northwestern Wisconsin conference. The Oconto eleven has taken a 28 to 8 trimming from the East DePere high Red-birds and has shown little in their other opening games, while the Kaws have romped to easy victories over Chilton in a non-conference fracas, Shawano, and Sturgeon Bay in conference tilts.

A vicious plunging attack has been instrumental in the three Kaukauna victories. Led by a fast charging line, the Kaw backs have pounded their way to average about seven yards on a plunge. Very little has been seen of the Littlemen's passing attack, as the line plunges have netted the necessary yardage. In the Sturgeon Bay game, however, the Kaw aerial attack was responsible for the second touch-down. Schueler, quarterback, hauled to Vils, right end, twice to give the Kaws their second marker.

Included in the starting lineup probably will be Vils and Tretin, ends; Rademacher and Block, tackles; Fleming and Reichel, guards; Maue, center; W. Kuchelmeister and Sischo, halfbacks; Van Dyke, full back; and Schuler, quarterback. Other players who will make the trip are Behrer, Heinz, Milgenberg, Schermitzler, Nagel, Nagan, Towlsley, Simmons, F. Kuchelmeister, Driessen, Van Able, Mankowsky, Wurdinger, McCormick, Rodell, Dix, Stephens, and Judae.

Judson Judae, a halfback and letterman of last year, who has been out several weeks with injuries has returned to the lineup. It is doubtful if Judae will see much action Saturday. He strained several ligaments in a practice session several weeks ago.

POLICE CHIEF RETURNS
Kaukauna—Police Chief R. H. McCarty has returned from Chicago where he attended the state convention of the Wisconsin State Police Chiefs' association. Sessions were held at Hotel Athearn Wednesday and Thursday. Chief McCarty formerly was secretary of the group and assisted in arranging the convention program.

Youth Injured in Fall From Auto

Frank Muthig, Kaukauna, May Have Fracture Of Skull

Kaukauna—Falling from the running board of a machine driven by Mrs. Herbert George, Frank Muthig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Muthig, sustained a possible skull fracture. The accident occurred near the intersection of Sarah and Depot-sts about 11:40 Thursday morning. The child is in a critical condition at the home of his parents.

Youth Injures Head At Swimming Pool

Kaukauna—Norbert Killian, Tonabon-st, received a head laceration when he struck his head on a beam while diving in the municipal swimming pool here Thursday afternoon. He dove from the lower end of the pool, which is restricted to wading, and where the ceiling is only several feet above the water. It was necessary for a local physician to sew up the wound.

Monthly Pig Fair at Kaukauna Tomorrow

Kaukauna—The Tri-county Fair association will hold its monthly pig fair here Saturday. Farmers from the immediate vicinity are expected to gather on the Dodge-st fair grounds to dispose of this surplus stock and vegetables. Kaukauna merchants will complete their fall festival with the Saturday fair. They are expected to offer special bargains to attract fair day shoppers.

Woman's Club Again May Furnish Lunches

Kaukauna—Whether the Kaukauna Woman's club will finance milk lunches and free dental clinics for school children this school term will be decided at the next meeting of the club on Oct. 18. The club will meet at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 18, in the library clubrooms.

Advancement Group Won't Meet This Month

Kaukauna—According to Lester J. Brenzel, president of the Kaukauna Advancement association, the association will not meet this month unless some unexpected business turns up. The club is subject to the call of the president and usually opens its schedule during October.

GOLF DANCE SATURDAY

Kaukauna—The first of a series of dances to be held by the Kaukauna Golf club will be staged at Combined Locks pavilion Saturday evening. Members of the committee in charge of the arrangements are Fred Olm, chairman, Ray McCarty, Gene Ditter, and George Egan.

Put Soil in Shape Now For Vegetable Garden

While most of the flowering annuals can be sown this fall to good advantage, not so much can be done in the vegetable garden except put the soil in shape. A good spading, turning in compost or manure, is the best move that can be made for next spring's vegetable planting. The perennial vegetables, asparagus and rhubarb as well as multiplier onions can be planted to excellent advantage this fall.

Spinach is the early spring vegetable that may be planted in advance of the season to advantage. Prepare the bed and scatter the seed in the rows as late as possible and dodge frozen ground. The idea is to get the seed sown so late that it will not germinate until next spring but will be ready to sprout as soon as the first favorable weather swells the germ in the seed.

Spinach must do all its growing in cool weather. The earlier it can be started the better and longer the crop. So fall sowing is a real advantage. Mulch the bed well after the seed is sown and remove the mulch early next spring, as soon as the ground starts to thaw. There is no use planting the old-fashioned small-leaf spinach. The modern inventions in the spinach life are so far superior, both in size of leaf and quality, that it is a foolish waste of space and time to bother with any but the newer sorts, mostly of Danish origin. It is more heat resistant and less prone to race up to seed at the slightest suspicion of warm weather.

Multiplier, or potato onions as they are sometimes called, give the first young onions in spring. A few bulbs put in this fall will give you a crop before the onion sets can get into action. They are perfectly hardy.

The asparagus bed may be set this fall, getting two-year-old plants from dealers. The main requisite is deep rich soil for asparagus and ample root room for each hill, giving the plants three feet of space each way. Rhubarb roots should be set out now. Half a dozen plants will be sufficient to provide an ample supply for the average family.

JOB? WELL, TAKE A HOROSCOPE ALONG
London—It may be that in the future all job seekers will have to have their horoscope read and take along a copy of it to the prospective employer.

The Psychologists and Educational Scientists of the British Association recently met here and Dr. Guest, of Birmingham advanced the above theory.

"If I were engaging a person I should ask him the date, time and place of his birth, and make my own horoscope for him," he said. "It would reveal more than all intelligence tests."

"The stars will tell such characteristics as honesty, mathematical or literary ability, the kind of occupation he would be good at, and similar things."

Put $ in your pocket while you put fuel in your furnace

BURN FORD COKE

PRODUCT OF THE FORD MOTOR COMPANY

LAST WINTER, did you pay a waste-tax every time you fed the furnace? This winter burn Ford Coke instead. With this fuel you will save money with each shovelful, because Ford Coke eliminates excessive waste and ash. Dollars don't go up the chimney in soot and smoke. Pennies aren't wasted in dust and clinkers.

Instead, you get concentrated heat, the cleanest, most efficient heat that man and nature can produce.

Ford Coke is made only from high-test coal. This assures a higher percentage of carbon, the only heat-producing factor in coal. Modern Ford methods, famed for their accuracy and inflexible care, surround every step of the coking process. Thus, ton after ton, you can depend on absolute uniformity. Ford Coke is a Ford product in every way, bringing you the quality and thrift for which this name has always stood.

Prepare now for a comfortable, care-free winter. Fill your bins with Ford Coke. You'll find it ignites readily. Can easily be regulated to burn slowly and consume completely, making a longer time between shovelfuls. Light to handle. Easy to bank. It leaves a small deposit of fluffy ash that's free from clinkers. The ideal domestic fuel . . . and most economical.

Dogs Attack Flocks, Kill Many Animals

Sheep, Ducks, Cattle are Targets of Night Assaults

Special to Post-Crescent
Forest Junction—Damage to cattle, sheep, and poultry by dogs in the farming community northeast of here is assuming undue proportions with successive attacks Tuesday and Wednesday nights at Ernest Buboltz and Brilliart Maertz farms on route 2. At the Maertz farm a flock of sheep was killed Wednesday night and two sheep were killed and one critically injured. The previous night at the Buboltz farm, dogs attacked the herd of dairy cows, inflicting serious wounds on the head and front legs of one cow, and less severe injuries to a number of others. A pure bred calf at the Maertz farm was killed and partly eaten a few nights ago. Similar losses of sheep, and over 80 ducks in one case, have occurred in the same area during the past few months. During the raid at the Buboltz farm this week, the owner went out with a gun, saw the dogs dimly in the darkness, but could not shoot on account of their mingling with the cows. On discharging the gun into the air the dogs escaped.

A special meeting of the electors of school district number 4, town of Woodville, will be held at the schoolhouse on Monday evening for considering a situation created by the widening of Highway 19 on which the schoolhouse and grounds are situated. In extending the present roadway to 120 feet, to accommodate the pavement to be placed there, the portion of the playground in front of the schoolhouse is being taken and the new boundary of the right-of-way comes close to the entrance of the building. A number of shade trees, a newly drilled well, and a piece of playground equipment are on the strip of land in question.

Among proposals which will probably be considered Monday evening is the purchase by the district of an additional strip of land at the rear of the one-acre lot to replace that taken for highway purposes, and then move the schoolhouse back an equivalent distance. In the event of moving the building, the construction of a basement has been considered in place of the stone wall which has been serving as a foundation. Another suggestion has been to leave the building unmoved and change the entrance to another side.

Twenty-nine out of 37 pupils at McKinley school, district 7, town of Brillion, are credited with perfect attendance for the first month of the present school year, in a report compiled by Miss Hildegard Wetzel, teacher of the school. Those with perfect attendance are: Warren Otto, Donald Schnell, Wallace, Helton, Harold, and Roland Ott, William, Desard, Ruth, and Harry Reinke, Lois, Robert, and Eldore Stanelle, Frank, Mabel, and Reuben Zirkel, Alden Broehm, Lorraine and Germaine Krueger, Lucille and Carol Zick, Dorothy Diekvoos, Victor Huebner, Garnet and Winifred La Veaux, Arline and Albin Wier, and Thelma and Donald Davis. McKinley school is closed Friday with Miss Wetzel attending the meeting of the Calumet County Teachers' association at Chilton.

Comfort Possible For All—Evjue

Abundant Resources Make Ambitions Possible, He Says

(Special to Post-Crescent)
New London—Things facing us today formed the subject of the talk given by William Evjue, editor of the Madison Capitol Times, before the Lutheran Men's club at its monthly meeting Thursday night. Men of America with its abundant resources should be able to realize their highest ambitions, the speaker said, which are to accumulate resources for comfort in declining years, to gain an education for children and to provide a comfortable home. With such simple and wholesome ambitions, Mr. Evjue asserted, it seems ridiculous that the present lack of employment and poverty should exist, as an abundance surrounds us. Every hardworking man, he said, that with every interest and activity organized, the fact still remains that happiness, well being and content are still out of the reach of many.

The speaker offered no definite solution to this problem beyond stating that though he believed that the church should take no part in politics, it should be able to produce leaders who would be enabled through their very powers of understanding to cope with such problems as arose among their people. To aid with the high ambition of every man to be able to realize his life's dreams of contentment and plenty for his loved ones should be the work of church leaders, Mr. Evjue said.

The great financial resources of America, he pointed out, are in the hands of a few. Seventy per cent of America's wealth is in the hands of 500 men, leaving 30 per cent to be divided among the remainder of the population. The pyramiding of such great fortunes has caused the present condition, he said. The country has suffered no great misfortune through flood, drought or pestilence. Great crops have been gathered so that the land is flooded with food, yet many are hungry. These conditions make it less easy to bring any new order out of the present chaos, he added.

Bee Gridders Hold Manawa to 0-0 Tie

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—The Manawa high school football team was held to a scoreless tie by the local B squad Thursday in a game played after school hours. Both teams played a good defensive game, with Manawa pressing the B team in every quarter. The visitors tossed seven passes of which none were completed. Their last one was thrown over the goal line just when the game ended. The locals threw four passes, three of which netted good gains. Pfeiffer snared one which resulted in a 25 yard gain.

Fitzgerald at half for Bloomquist's squad ripped off some nice off-tackle gains while Palmer did most of the ball carrying.

P. T. A. Considers Organization of Mothers' Clubs

Proposal Is Made at Meeting of New London Parents, Teachers

(Special to Post-Crescent)
New London—The discussion of the proposed organization of mothers' clubs by grades, with an aim to better acquaint mothers with one another, with the teachers, the aims of the course of study for the particular grade, and the physical needs of the child and the school room, formed the basis of informal discussion at the first of the season's meetings of the Parent-Teacher association Thursday evening. In connection with this, other subjects such as supervised recreation in evenings for children of upper grades and high school was gone into, as was the proposed physical dental examination of children by local dentists.

These questions were part of the questionnaire formulated by the P. T. A. Teachers association committee on activities, which among eleven questions presented to parents and teachers received the most attention as the blanks were returned to the committee.

Mrs. C. H. Kellogg led the discussion, calling upon parents and teachers for their ideas. Though no formal action was taken, it became evident that the formation of mothers' clubs would be welcomed, both by teachers and parents. Teachers present stated that closer contact with the homes would make their way clearer in teaching of children, and parents stated that they believed they could give aid in small ways and could profit by cooperating with the teachers.

McMahon Favors Plan
R. J. McMahon, superintendent of public schools, evidenced his approval of the questions being discussed by stating that first and last his interests are with the child. The individual child, he said, is what matters, regardless of what the parents believe or feel, and any movement or project which affects the well being of that child in a worth while way will have his entire approval. "I am for mothers' clubs," Mr. McMahon said, "if they get to the root of the issue at hand and are not sidetracked by other issues or details. Teachers are criticized harshly for little things. For instance, the rudiments of good teaching may be slighted and grossly neglected without the slightest objection from a parent. Yet, at some slight mistake of the teacher the whole structure of the educational system would be criticized by parents.

Dental problems of children whose parents are unable at the present time to care for their children's teeth may become a part of the year's program being formulated by the association. This project is to be worked out later, however. Many parents feel that the future health of the children depends upon sound teeth and dental attention. Playground problems and the matter of providing sufficient equipment for wholesome play for the development of children also may be entered upon.

The business meeting ended with a mixer.

Legion Post Gets War-Time Token

Receives Payment Used to Welcome Waupaca-Boys Home

(Special to Post-Crescent)
Waupaca—At the joint installation of the American Legion and its auxiliary in the Waupaca Memorial armory Wednesday evening a framed pennant was presented to the legion by the auxiliary. This pennant with the words "Welcome Home Waupaca Boys" was made by Mrs. Freda Larson Lewis, now of Albany, N. Y., who served as nurse in France during the years 1917 to 1919 and was a Waupaca girl. When it was known the Waupaca boys were on their way home Miss Larson was chosen to make the boys. This was in May, 1919. On the way to New York she made this pennant. Two of the boys of the company she met were present Wednesday evening. Walter Nelson and Donald Weeden. This pennant was recently found in a desk used by William Drensen who was at that time cashier of the old National bank in Waupaca. The members of the Legion were very much pleased to receive this framed pennant from the Auxiliary. Big Guns of Party Speak In Midwest

Seven Members of Hoover Cabinet Take Field in Farm Districts

Chicago —(AP)— With just one month of campaigning left to go, Republican leaders have put their "big guns" to work on the prairies of the midwest.

The leading speakers of the party, including seven members of President Hoover's cabinet, have been assigned to the conquest of the farmer vote. Working with them are no less than a score of nationally known speakers.

And the president himself, just back in Washington from his opening campaign speech in agricultural Iowa, has been scheduled for at least one and perhaps two more speeches in the central states.

Campaign directors at National headquarters here said today the drive for votes will be continued with gathering intensity until election day in every doubtful middle west state.

Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur, it was announced, will join next week with the host of Republican orators already afield. Starting with an address at Cincinnati next Monday, Wilbur will make 12 speeches during the next 11 days in Ohio, Illinois, Michigan and Iowa.

Leaders Are Active

Already embarked on rigorous tours are Secretary of War Hurley, Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, Secretary of Treasury Mills, and Assistant Secretary of Navy Jahncke—all in pursuit of the farm vote. Secretary of Commerce

Chapin and Secretary of Labor Doak will join them in the mid-west within another fortnight.

Vice President Charles Curtis, speaking today at Fargo, N. D., likewise has addressed many agricultural audiences and his sister, Mrs. Dolly Gann, begins next week another swing through the mid-west.

Just as President Hoover's Des Moines, Iowa, appearance served as the starting gun of the Republican drive in the middle west, campaign directors said, so will be Calvin Coolidge's radio address next Tuesday night be the formal opening wedge in the east.

Mr. Hoover, busy with affairs at Washington but conferring often by long distance telephone with party leaders here, probably will make his only eastern address at Boston late in the campaign, it has been indicated, and also will journey west to Minneapolis or Cleveland, or perhaps both.

Following is a partial schedule of speaking dates booked at campaign headquarters here for the more prominent campaigners:

Vice President Curtis—Oct. 7 at Fargo, Oct. 8 at Bismarck, N. D., Oct. 10 at Billings, Mont., Oct. 11 at Spokane, Oct. 12 at Lewiston, Ida.

Discontented Children Need Friends Their Age

BY ANGELO PATRI

"What's that noise?"

"That's Jimmie."

"What in the world is the matter with him. I never heard such a racket. He isn't sick. He can't be just mean. What in the world?"

"There isn't a thing the matter with him. I've asked him what he wanted and he doesn't know. I've offered him everything and he does not want it. He picks up one thing and whines. Then he picks up the next thing, drops that and whines. I don't know what to do with him."

Jimmie presented a sad spectacle. He sat on the floor of his play-room slamming things down hard and howling between slams.

"What's the trouble, Jimmie?"

"I don't wanna."

"You needn't. What is it you don't want?"

"I don't want anything. I want somebody to play with me."

"Nobody wants to play with a boy who sits on the floor and howls like an old man of the sea. Get up and come out and play with me."

"No. I don't wanna. You're too big."

"I've got a ball. You ought to see what I can do with this ball. I can throw it and catch it and—"

"So can I. But I don't wanna."

"Aw, come ahead. Don't sit there like a baby howling for nothing. I ain't howling for nothing. I want somebody to play with me."

"Didn't I say I'd play with you?"

"Go on away. I don't want you. You're too big. G'wan away." And he resumed his slamming and howling.

I brought me of the small boy across the street. He was busy piling stones in a little barrow and trundling across the garden to a hole he had dug. He was a sturdy little chap in overalls and he had no companion but his barrow. I hailed him. "Hey there. Want somebody to play with you?"

He eyed me suspiciously. Who?

"No. A chap about your size."

"Sure. Where is he?"

"Wait. I'll bring him."

"Come along, Jim. I found a fellow that wants you to play with him. Hurry up. He won't wait. He's busy."

Jimmy scrambled up and trotted after me, sniffling as he came. I indicated the boy across the way with the barrow. He shuffled over. The two eyed each other for a minute and then the chap in overalls said, "What you crying for? Are they mean to you? Don't you care. Come on and we'll build a garage. I got the stones all ready."

We are not enough for the children. Toys are not much good. They favor and more usable the better. What they need is companionship with children of their own age and a few simple things to use in their projects. Most children have too many toys and too few friends of their own group. Loneliness in the midst of crowds is possible, especially for little children.

Your Birthday

"LIBRA"

If October 8th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:30 a. m. to 9:15 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m. and again from 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger hours are from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m. and from 7:15 p. m. to 8:15 p. m.

Heavenly influences lend themselves to making this day a calm and peaceful one for you. Right motives will seem to prompt you in all of your actions today, and you will probably find that they are undertaken with some good end in view. It may not be a day devoid of activity, but all that transpires will function harmoniously and most satisfactory results should follow.

Children born on October 8th will have mild and kindly dispositions. They will not be subject to tantrums, but will lead a peaceful and orderly existence. They will take great interest in all that goes on about them, but they will act as spectators, and will not be inclined to meddling or mischief making. They will be of a sympathetic nature and will early show traits of character which if not

JAUNTY DRESS FOR COLLEGE

The straight-line dress is a popular sports type for school and general day wear.

This youthful model is individualized by its starched white pique color, so modish this season. The vertical line of the front button closing of the bodice carried down into the skirt, makes the inverted plait stitched part way makes the figure appear tall and slender.

Cashmere jersey in bottle green made the original.

Plaided woollens, wool crepe, soft monotonous and rough crepe silks are also appropriate.

Style No. 876 is designed in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36 and 38 inches bust.

Size 16 requires 2½ yards 54-inch with 2 yard 36-inch contrasting.

It would pay you to send for a copy of our Fall and Winter Fashion Book for it will help you plan your fall wardrobe. And you will save money in using our low-priced patterns. Dignity is Fashion's Chief Note for Autumn

BY JEAN PATOU

Paris—I think that altogether too much importance is attached, when describing fashions, to qualities certainly very characteristic of the style trend of the moment such as the defined waistline, all-round fullness or fullness placed at the hemline, and so on. But I consider that the first and most important thing to achieve is a distinguished-looking ensemble, especially in afternoon clothes.

This is my main preoccupation, and when I have arrived, in my general theme, to this result, only then do I bring in the note of fantasy. Take, for instance, just one category of ensemble, that of semi-formal afternoon, and you will find that a dress can indifferently be perfectly completed by a three-quarter length jacket, provided this is sufficiently full, a seven-eighths coat or one entirely covering the dress.

Simplicity The keynote

In my present collection I have favored all three, and while in every instance great simplicity is the keynote of these ensembles, each type of coat will be found extremely elegant.

Last season it was rare to find a combination of lines pleasing to eye without conveying the sensation of "already-seen." My new feature, therefore, depends solely on a more or less important change in one of the principal elements of the mode. That is why, in the composition of the general theme of my new idea, you will find the old and accepted combination of lines completely disregarded.

We all know that these lines help to make a dress constructed on an accepted theme all the more attractive and beautiful. If you will, let us review the most important lines, those which are to be found around the waistline and lower, since this season it is at this point I staged my revolution.

Below The Belt Line

You will realize that the change in style brought about by my new idea is almost as much of an optical illusion as a reality. For example, if to the eye the waistbelt seems to have been placed at an angle lower than normal, you will find in the combination of lines centered at this point a reserve of other lines that attenuate the too harsh effect that might have been the result of the lower belt.

It is always a rather delicate matter to start a new fashion. This lowering of the line could have been more accentuated. However, my efforts caused sufficient comment to make me realize I had gone too far.

My idea, anyway, was not to absorb the waistline, and in none of my new models the waistline has been disregarded. I decided, though, when preparing my fall collection, that the time has come to change something in the equilibrium of dress without in any way destroying it and at the same time achieve a result that would be both different and becoming to women. I think the new combination of lines will be found adaptable to many more types than ever before.

Patou features a long coat which uses a discreet fur trimming for the collar and the smaller cuffs in this conservative afternoon ensemble of medieval brown and tea-rose.

The combination of lines placed at a lower angle contributes a delightfully new look to this gown of tea-rose crepe l'accone which is worn with a soft brown leather belt.

Grey fox tones the color of this grey afternoon ensemble. The new collar makes an effective band around the coat which assumes an intriguing new length.

THE STORY OF SUE

By Margery Hale

JACK'S eyes narrowed a little as he looked at Sue. She wished that she hadn't reminded him that it had taken a longer time than was necessary for him to make the trip from his father's house to his office in Joe Dexter's car.

"Is that supposed to be... sarcasm?" Jack asked then.

"No, of course not. Just a comment. But maybe the distance between the two places didn't seem so long to you?" She knew that her voice was acidic. She didn't want to be. Yes, she did. She didn't care. After all, Jack hadn't had to stand at the curb and gaze at the girl with that adoring quality that women always thought distinctly personal. He didn't have to be so galling.

"No, the distance didn't seem long," Jack said doggedly. "Joe's an interesting person. You ought to like her."

"Oh yes, I do. I don't happen to," Sue said the words briefly.

"You needn't tell me that. I know it. You don't like very many of my friends, do you?" He said the words more slowly, as though thinking over the matter.

Sue's heart sank a little. If he had said the sentence swiftly, angrily. But he didn't.

"I like most of them. You know it. But that woman... Oh Jack."

"She's an old friend. I can't let everyone slide."

"I'm not asking you to. You don't understand."

"Oh yes, I do." Now he stood up. His eyes were angry. His chin was twice as stubborn. The cold deliberateness was gone. She noticed that and was glad. "You are jealous of any woman I talk to for more than five minutes. You needn't deny it. But it's all right for you to go chasing around the country in anybody's car."

"Meaning Arnold Page's, I suppose," Sue cut in and her voice was so cold, so sharp that it frightened her.

"If you want to put it that way!"

"But that doesn't mean anything."

"And you think Joe Dexter does?"

"She'd feel complimented!"

"She's young... she's pretty... she's in love with you... Oh yes, she is... and men are so dumb... they never see things I was trying to help you!" Sue knew that she was going to cry in a minute.

"Thanks, but I think I'll get across the river all right. I've never gone down in midstream. You have got to cut out this stubborn streak. Holy smoke, can't a man have a little freedom? You'd think I was going to fall for the first woman who gave me a second glance! I'm the one who ought to talk. You and Page..."

"Stop!" Sue's voice was so sharp that it seemed to her it cut something in two. Her heart, maybe. Anyway, something was hurting terribly inside. Dreadfully. But she had to go on. She had to say the words that came crowding. "It was all right for you to go to your father's for luncheon and leave me home because he doesn't think I'm his social equal. And it was all right for him to have the girls he likes present. But because I accidentally came with a cupped man... who loves Nancy Becker. Oh, men always get their own way, anyway."

She turned and ran from the room, up the stairs, catching her breath in a broken sob.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

By Emily Post

WHAT SHALL WE CALL THEM?

Dear Mrs. Post: Please tell me if it is correct to write "Dear Miss Mollie" to an elderly lady, and "Dear Nell" to a girl friend, on a postcard?

Answer: It is not very important, but conventionally a message on a card—like that of a telegram—begins without salutation unless the card is enclosed in an envelope.

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you tell me the correct way to address my husband's mother? I have been calling her "mother" but some of the family have said this is improper and that I should say "Mother Jones."

I was under the impression the surname should be mentioned only when both mother and daughter are living. My mother died long before I can remember, and my mother-in-law is just like an own mother to me.

Answer: From the point of view of almost every mother, I can't imagine a more blessed situation than to have the wife of her son or the husband of her daughter love her enough to call her "mother." I feel sure that your mother-in-law must have taken it to her heart that you would not feel about her as you do. Therefore, I would not change your name for her for anything in the world. Actually there is no rule of convention about what we shall call our in-laws. "Mother Jones" was customary fifty years ago, but is rarely heard now—except in a few old-fashioned communities. "Mrs. Jones" is often heard, and among certain moderns "Mary" is not unknown. It would not be fair to say that relationship shall be judged by a name. But it is hard to believe that "Mrs. Jones" is as close to the heart of a daughter-in-law, or a son-in-law, as is "Mother" or "Mumme" or "Mom."

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it proper to introduce a man who is a sea and lake captain as "Captain Jones" or "Mr. Jones"?

Answer: The first is "Captain Jones" according to best taste, because being a captain of a vessel is his life's work. The second, on the other hand, is Mr. in civil life.

Old Gardener

If more than half a dozen plants are being grown in a window, it is an excellent plan to provide a table or plant shelf. Any tinsmith will make a little pan to place on such a table or shelf. It should be as long as the window is wide and about eighteen inches across. The sides should be two inches high. This pan can be fitted with small pebbles such as are sold in ten-cent stores for bulb bowls. Then the pots may be set directly upon the pebbles without the use of saucers. Surplus water escapes among the pebbles and is evaporated, adding greatly to the health of the plants. At the same time the danger of having the pots stand in water is eliminated, and the housewife need never worry about having her carpet or rugs stained or soiled.

Disparity in Age no Longer Is Bar to Happy Marriage

BY DOROTHY DIX

Should a woman marry a man younger than herself? No question is asked me oftener than this by women. They are sought in marriage by men with whom they are in love, men who are congenial to them and with whom they have all sorts of interests in common; men who are fitted in every way to make good husbands, but the women hesitate to marry them because they have celebrated a few more birthdays than the men have. The men care nothing for the disparity in age, but the women are held back by their superstitious reverence for the ancient taboo against the wife being the elder of a married couple.

DOROTHY DIX

Obviously the woman should not be many years older than the man. Certainly no more than fifteen at the utmost. For a woman in her 70s or her 80s to buy her a boy husband is every whit as idiotic as it is for a senile old man to purchase him a flapper bride and it turns out as disastrously in one case as the other.

Youth and age can never mate because they have not one single impulse or desire or taste or habit in common and this is equally true whether the woman or the man is the older. Fortunately, however, elderly millionaires seldom commit the folly of marrying their own young enough to be their great-grandsons. They lack the vanity that makes a tottering old man of 90 believe that a blooming girl of 16 loves him for himself alone.

But when a woman in considering marrying a man ten or fifteen years younger than herself, the vital point that should determine her decision is his age. If he is 20 and she is 30 it is not to be thought of. If he is 30 and she is 40 it is a good matrimonial risk.

The reason for this is plain. At 20 a man still has the mother complex that makes every boy fall in love with his school teacher or any older woman who will take the trouble to entertain him and jolly him along. He still wants to hold on to the hand, so to speak, of some sophisticated woman who will guide him through the strange paths of life. If a very young woman marries a woman older than himself she is always more mother than wife to him and he is very certain to turn from her when he grows up to some girl of his own age.

Besides, a boy's tastes and habits are not formed. They are in a state of flux and change from day to day. He does not know what he wants in a wife nor what kind of woman will interest him when he is a matured man.

If the man is 30, however, the situation is entirely changed. He is mature. He is formed. His tastes are settled. And if he wants to marry a woman ten years older than he is it is because she comes up to his ideals and satisfies his judgment.

He prefers ripe fruit to green, the finished product to that in the making. He prefers a woman of poise and dignity to a hobbledehoy who is jumping around like a monkey on a stick. He enjoys the society of a woman who has read and thought and traveled and had experience of life better than he does that of a debutante who can only giggle and talk about what a wild time they had at the last party.

Also it is to be borne in mind that a man or woman's chronological age does not determine their real age, which is a matter of the spirit and mind and heart. Many women of 50, even, are younger than many men of 30. So if a man of 30 wants to marry a woman of 40 it is because he feels that they are in the same age class, and she is foolish to refuse him because of the different dates on their birth certificates.

The theory that a woman should not marry a man younger than herself was based upon two assumptions, neither one of which is true now. The first was that inasmuch as the older man made the preferred match, that was an incontrovertible argument in a time when marriage was not only a woman's sole avocation but vocation, but the modern woman does not have to marry for a living. Hence when she takes a husband she does so to a good position or not. If she is ten years older than he is she either has money of her own that she inherited or else she is apt to be safely ensconced in a good job she has made for herself.

The other objection to women marrying men younger than themselves was the fact women aged more quickly than men, but that is not the case now when beauty culture has become a religious rite with the fair sex and women devote more thought and care to preserving their complexions and their figures than they do to saving their immortal souls, whereas men let Nature take its course with them and get fat and bald and careless about their clothes. Look about you in any crowd and you will see that women look far younger for their age than men do.

So I would say to the woman who is contemplating marrying a man younger than herself: Beware of cradle-snatching. Boy babies don't grow up into satisfactory husbands, but if the man is as

They Reached Slam Bid, But it Took Long Time

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Today's hand was recently given to me quite eagerly by two fairly good players. They were very proud of the brilliant bidding on the hand which enabled them to reach a lay-down Slam, despite the handicap that a part-score imposed upon them. They had shown Aces and Kings and had made what they considered all sorts of beautiful inferences, and expected high praise for having reached this contract. I quite willingly gave them this praise because they deserved it for the work they had gone through. However, sound logic and correct inferences of the Approach-Forcing System would have simplified matters for them greatly.

North showed extra values and his interest in a Slam by bidding three. Now North and South showed, first, a willingness to go further; second,

"Marthas" of World Need Beauty Tips

BY ELSIE PIERCE

SOMETIMES when I write about cosmetics and the frivolous phases of beauty problems my conscience is troubled. I am afraid that the Marys of life who spend endless hours upon their own beautification, adornment, and pleasures, may think that I am encouraging them in the butterfly frivolity. As a matter of fact, it is the Marthas of life who have my sympathy, and whom I am most anxious to help.

I need not tell Mary how to beautify herself, she knows how, instinctively. But I do want to talk to Martha. Perhaps Martha is a young girl who has assumed all the burden of the family. There may be many good and compelling reasons for her servitude. But everyone is entitled to her own individuality and her own share of health, beauty and happiness—whether she serves as sister, daughter, wife or mother. If she does not claim it, she is not only laying up unhappiness for herself, but she is laying up unhappiness for her family, for selfish people are never really contented. Demand that others assume their share of responsibility in order that her overburdened self may have, daily, some free time for pursuit of her own health, happiness and beauty.

Every girl, every woman, is entitled to the time necessary for perfecting the daintiness of body and dress. She does not want to slump into a rough road. Even the most blooded race horse of Kentucky would be unfitted for the Derby if constantly used for ploughing! And only Martha's mistaken sense of duty has caused her to permit herself to be turned into a plough horse, but it is never too late to rebel and throw off the yoke!

I have frequent pathetic letters from granddaughters and grandmothers who have for years had tiresome chores to do for selfish relatives. Even if she is eighty, she can demand the right to graze peacefully in pleasant pastures. And if anything less than eighty, give thought to beauty treatments for wrinkles and double chins, and cosmetics. I am sure that a little bit of rouge would cheer her up considerably, and a few cosmetic touches, skillfully applied, might bring out latent charms which she had not dreamed she possessed. And she would be so much happier if she found that she possessed them! For Martha, regardless of long servitude, is a Woman!

And, Mary, as I said in the beginning, does not need any advice. She will still continue to paint a too cupid bow on her mouth and to preen and groom that beauty which is beloved of all men. If you are the Martha type, let me help you with bulletins on any phase of beauty that may be worrying you.

much as 30 years old, go to it. You will have a better chance of happiness than most wives, because your age will give you more sense to get along with your husband.

DOROTHY DIX.

Rose: I think it would be an excellent idea for your club to adopt a study plan for your meetings, since you do not care for sewing or cards. Your local librarian will advise you as to a course to follow, whether it be fiction, history, poetry, or the study of music or painting. In this way you would be helping yourselves to a liberal education, and by taking over one book or another at your meetings can get different views and opinions. This idea might not sound so interesting at first, but a study club fascinates the longer it continues and soon you will begin to feel very proud of your knowledge.

Roosevelt to Confer With James A. Reed

Democratic Nominee Planning to Reply to Hoover's Speech

Albany, N. Y. (AP)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt is expected to confer today with former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri.

Mr. Reed is coming here before heading into the midwest, where he is expected to reply to President Hoover's recent speech at Des Moines. The governor himself replied to the speech yesterday in a radio address in which he accused the Republicans of carrying on a "pork barrel" campaign in their proposals for the farmers.

Mr. Roosevelt will go late today to his home at Hyde Park for a weekend of rest. He will then return here for another week before starting his swing into the southern and border states.

In a speech to luncheon meetings of the Roosevelt Business and Professional Men's league in various parts of the country, Mr. Roosevelt yesterday afternoon said he was "happy" to find that President Hoover "has come to agree with me" that business recovery depends upon the restoration of "prosperity to our agricultural interests, our cattle interests, our mining interests."

"This doctrine," Roosevelt said, "I have been preaching ever since the day I was nominated, and I am happy that the president finally has come to agree with me on this point when he says:

"Every thinking citizen knows that the farmer, the worker and the business man are in the same boat, and must all come ashore together."

"Very Much at Sea"

The Democratic candidate said he was "glad also that he thereby admits that the farmer, the worker and the business man are now all of them very much at sea."

"We have had an excellent example," said Mr. Roosevelt, "of belated promises addressed specially to a group in the hope that with some new temporary expedient, suggested a month before election, the minds of farmers may be turned away from the grim fact of a consistently unfriendly attitude on the part of the administration over many years."

The governor said "this type of campaigning, which might be called a 'pork barrel' campaign, is not my notion of what the country needs in a time like this."

He called for "economic interchange" with other nations and urged the regulation and planning of industrial production, saying: "Whenever income in any great group in the population becomes so disproportionate as to dry up purchasing power within any one group, the balance of economic life is thrown out of order. It is a proper concern of the government to use wise measures of regulation such as will bring this purchasing power back to normal."

Bonus Army Still Lives on in Many National Groups

Organization, Supposedly Extinct, Maintains Publications

Washington — The bonus army, supposed to have been wiped out by a raid of federal troops here last July, lives on in a dozen or more national organizations and publications.

Anyone who tries to keep track of these various offshoots of the famous B. E. F. simply gets dizzy. Leaders of the bonus marchers were inspired to save something from the wreckage and build mighty movements thereon. They seek to recruit new armies from the veterans and the unemployed, working up new and changing programs for bonus casting and general unemployment relief. Noticeable among all the organs and organizations is a great hate for Mr. Hoover, the Great White Father who fooled the flag-waving bonus vets by turning the army loose on them.

Two of the outfits have their national headquarters in Washington—the B. E. F. Rank and File of America and the Khaki Shirts of America. Each has organized scores of affiliated units over the country and reports the existence of various small camps or colonies which are miniatures of the camps the vets once set up in Washington.

The B. E. F. Rank and File aims to "unite and co-ordinate all veterans to promote political, social and economic justice." It urges bonus payment, five billion dollars for unemployment relief, five billion for public works relief, old age pensions, five-day week, unemployment insurance and similar measures. Active membership is limited to veterans, but anyone with 50 cents can apply for associate membership.

In active command here is Edward F. Atwell, leader, who commanded the American camp the night it was wiped out. About 30 charters have been granted for chapters over the country. The B. E. F. News is still being published as an eight-page tabloid weekly, devoted to the cause of unemployed vets and others, bitterly assailing Hoover and War Department officials and enjoying a wide circulation. It is ably edited by Joseph L. Heffernan, a former judge, who has to put his name on the masthead to distinguish it from "B. E. F. News" which is published and sold each week.

Besides the two weeklies here there is "The B. E. F. Press" in New York, which publishes "The B. E. F. Crusader" as the "official organ" and has produced a book by George Kinscholtz, former bonus army national contact officer, called "The Battle of Washington—A National Disgrace." Another B. E. F. paper was published at Erie, Pa., but stopped.

The Khaki Shirts of America, which seems more actively interested in all the unemployed, is headed by R. B. Ellison, another former B. E. F. national contact officer.

It takes B. E. F. members as a nucleus, gives them life membership without cost, has a second class of membership for unemployed persons who promise to pay a dollar when they get jobs and a third class for those who can pay now. Naturally, it is handicapped for lack of funds. Recently they appealed to 48 governors to establish state camps for the homeless unemployed. Receiving no encouragement they have not addressed all American mayors urging a plan of writer bulleting which will utilize vacant stores and buildings.

The idea is to make such concentrations of the unemployed as self-sustaining as possible, reducing per capita costs of relief. Khaki Shirt units are urging the plan in their various communities.

Other so-called national organizations grown from the B. E. F. exist, but the only one receiving any attention is still another Khaki Shirts, with headquarters in Kansas City. Unlike the Khaki Shirts before mentioned, it is militant, has Fascist tendencies, wears brown shirts and is said to plan mass demonstrations this winter, although the program is vague. Membership is open to all, but its numerous officers must be veterans.

Walker May Seek Senate Seat, Report

Former New York Mayor Not to Run for Old Office in November

S. S. Europa—(P)—Sources close to former Mayor James J. Walker, who is returning to New York from Europe aboard the Europa, said today they believed he would be more interested in a campaign for the United States senate at some future time than in running again for mayor of New York.

The matter was not discussed, however, at a smoking room conference aboard ship after midnight this morning at which Walker announced to his friends that he had declined to be a candidate for mayor at the November election.

The announcement was made shortly after he had radioed a similar message to John F. Curry, Tammany chieftain, at the Democratic county convention in New York.

"That completes the picture of me as a private citizen," the former mayor remarked after he had read his statement in the smoking room.

"I have done for myself what others have tried to do for me."

He refused to comment on his political plans, or to say whether he would aid in the mayoralty campaign after he returns to New York Sunday. Everything, he said, was up to the party.

"I am an organization man," he said.

Friends said he would take a six months rest, although he made no mention of it himself.

He seemed much relieved, however, after his decision was made, and ate the heartiest dinner he has had since the ship left Cherbourg. After making his announcement he sat up until 2 a. m., chatting with Ina Claire, the actress, and Jo Davidson, noted American sculptor.

Science Studies Beer's Effect Malmoe, Sweden—Courts are now accepting in traffic cases the results of science's tests of beer and its effect on motorcar drivers. Prof. Erik Widmark of Lund university, states that tests have been made so accurately as to detect within five minutes the traces of a single glass of light beer.

Night School Classes Will Open Monday

Many Vacancies Still Existing in Various Courses

Evening school classes will open at the Appleton Vocational school at 7:30 next Monday evening, according to Herb Hellig, director. There still are vacancies in many classes and persons desiring to join these may register now. Complete information on the classes can be secured at the school any night after the classes.

In the department of trades and industry there is room for people in several classes.

Once a week on Friday nights there will be a class in the use of the steel square. Any individual engaged in construction work or who has any occasion to make use of the steel square may profit considerably from this class, Mr. Hellig said.

This class will start with the elementary uses of the square. The courses will include use of the square in Essex board measure, brace measure, mitre cuts for polygons, the octagon scale and lengths of common rafters, jack rafters, hip and valley rafters for the various pitches. The various types of squares will be considered.

Classes in drawing and blue print reading will be offered on Tuesday and Thursday nights if enough more people enroll.

Several requests have been made for a course in plant maintenance. This class will be interesting and valuable, he said, to an individual who has responsibilities for maintaining a plant or plant equipment in proper operating condition. It is possible for the Vocational school authorities to secure an instructor for this class who has had previous experience teaching this subject. The class if offered would be given for one night a week for possibly a period of 10 weeks.

Mathematics Classes

Classes in arithmetic, algebra, and shop mathematics have been organized, but more enrollments will be accepted. These classes all meet on Tuesday and Thursday nights. A class in slide rule will be held one night a week if six more enrollments are secured. This same class was held last year and was very successful. Practical applications of the slide rule were studied.

The class in welding, Tuesday night, is filled, but immediately upon the completion of the present class in December, another class will be started. Registrations for this class in welding will be taken any evening at the office.

Due to the large enrollment woodworking is being offered four nights a week this year, one group meeting on Monday and Wednesday nights, and one group on Tuesday and Thursday nights.

A class in printing which will be restricted to men in the trade will be held on Monday and Thursday nights. All printers, including those out of work at the present time, may take advantage of this opportunity to keep abreast of the developments in the printing trade.

Other classes in trade and industry will be started from time to time. The vocational school authorities urge any one with a desire for self-improvement to avail themselves of the opportunity for evening study.

Pipe for Her

Relaxing from her labor of designing Hollywood styles, Mme. Lusbeth Krausz, Viennese designer, gave the movie capital something to talk about when she calmly took out her favorite pipe and started puffing. Mme. Krausz will remain in Hollywood about two weeks, so by that time your favorite unrelaxed movie queen may be puffing her own cornucopia.

Revolt Crushed In Abyssinia by Haile Selassie

Wife of Former Emperor
Pleads With Ruler for Life of Spouse

Addis Ababa, Abyssinia.—(P)—The great heart of Haile Selassie, emperor of Abyssinia, king of kings and descendant of that great Queen Balkis, the friend of Solomon, was torn once more today between gentle mercy and prudent caution.

On the one hand were the fearful pleadings of a woman, the wife of the former emperor, Lady Jeassu, for the release of her spouse, now held in durance in the misty, rain-shrouded hills of the province of Godjam, to the north.

On the other was the possibility of an end to that peace which began to shine on Abyssinia and its emperor two months ago after Lidj had finally been rounded up and banished, in the early hours of a summer morning, into Godjam for safe keeping.

War Over Religion

The new emperor tried to introduce Mohammedism into the region which had been Christian for centuries, and he was overthrown by Selassie, the Christian king. Recently, however, a man trouble just strode down upon Selassie from those hills of Godjam. The governor, Ras Hailou, had to be arrested for plotting against the emperor.

And then Jeassu, dressed as a woman, broke through the guards that had kept him a prisoner for over 15 years and got away. Soon Jeassu was reported at the head of a large army in the Stealog hills, waiting only for the end of the rainy season to swoop down on Selassie, his enemy, jaller and successor.

Selassie sent a force of troops after Jeassu, however, and eventually the 15,000 spear-bearing warriors and the government troops with rifles brought him in.

They took the former king of kings to a railroad station a few miles out of town and there, at 1 o'clock of a summer morning, they put him on a special train and shipped him off in durance to Godjam, whistles blowing and the bell ringing.

To finish up the work of peace, Haile Selassie also brought in Ras Hailou. His trial was a matter of prime importance in the state. Five hundred peers and the assembled parliament of Abyssinia formed the court. He was found guilty of plotting against the government and sentenced to death.

Haile Selassie then came forward, however, and in a moving oration, handed down the executive clemency. At the same time, however, he banished the ras and confiscated all his feudal rights and properties.

Selassie rubbed his hands, shrugged his shoulders—and went back to the task of trying to get a loan

Badger Farmers To Convene This Month at Wausau

State Convention Will be Held for Fourth Consecutive Year

Madison.—For the fourth consecutive year Wisconsin farmers are calling their own convention at which they will discuss their own problems. The convention this time will be held in the auditorium of central school at Wausau, Oct. 18 and 19.

Cooperative marketing, taxation and utilities will be the topics of discussion states B. J. Gehrmann, Mellen, president of the Wisconsin Council of Agriculture, under whose auspices the conference is called.

Previous conferences have been out of the somewhat obdurate central banks of Europe. Peace reigned in his realm, he told the bankers.

Not long ago there were reports of rebellion again in Godjam and its new governor, Ras Emerou, was hustled there in an airplane as soon as he returned from a trip to Europe.

And now comes the pleading woman, asking that her husband who, only last June was brandishing the fearful spear of revolt, be freed again, up there in the Godjam hills. It's a tough job for a Christian king and a man of peace.

attended by an average of about 1800 farmers, and it is expected that the meeting at Wausau will attract as many or more.

W. J. Rogan, county agricultural agent of Marathon county, is in charge of the local arrangements. C. O. Moser, vice president of the American Cotton Growers' association, is scheduled for the opening speech on marketing at the first session Tuesday evening, October 18th.

Discussions Wednesday morning will include the following: "How Cooperative Livestock Marketing Can Aid the Livestock Farmer," by O. V. Rensberg, Central Cooperative association, South St. Paul, Minn.

"Facts About the National Cheese Producers' Federation" by A. H. Lauterback, general manager, National Cheese Producers' federation, Plymouth, Wisconsin.

"The Wisconsin Marketing Situation" by W. L. Witte, chief of the division of markets of the department of agriculture and markets.

Wednesday afternoon the program will include: D. E. Lilienthal of the Public Service Commission in an address "Public Utilities and the Farmer" and H. M. Groves, Wisconsin Tax commission "Fair Taxation and the Farmer." Governor Phil LaFollette has been invited to address the farmers Wednesday afternoon.

Dean C. L. Christensen of the college of agriculture will give the concluding address Wednesday evening. The subject will be "Our Next Job in Developing the Market." Reports of committees and other business meetings will be held throughout the day.

The United States still has some 200,000,000 acres of land available for homesteaders.

Mrs. Drear: Just look at my hands—red as henna. That's what comes of having to do your own work.

Mrs. Cheer: I do my own work and don't care who knows it. The only difference is I use Oxydol and keep my hands in shape.

Women who have no end of trouble keeping their hands nice along with doing their own housework will find that big package of Oxydol a sight for sore eyes. It has a way of getting unpleasant work done before you know it. In the wash or in the dishpan it picks on dirt and not on your hands. Won't ball up either.

THE NEBBS

REMEMBER, YOU WILL REMEMBER CALED RENROD, THE MILLIONAIRE BROKER, WHO WAS DESERTED AT THE ALTAR BY BETSY NEBB, RUOY'S DAUGHTER. HE HATES THE NAME OF NEBB AND BELIEVES THE SINS OF THE CHILDREN SHOULD BE VISITED ON THE FATHERS.

...RUDOLPH NEBB, THE PEOPLE'S CANDIDATE FOR SENATOR, WITH HIS SIMPLE, STRAIGHTFORWARD ARGUMENTS, MADE THE SILVER-TONGUED ORATOR, ROSCOE NOODLE, LOOK LIKE A POLITICAL NOVICE.

SO CAESAR HEIT, HIS DAUGHTER'S FATHER-IN-LAW, PUT HIM IN THIS SPOT. HIS SON STOLE THE ONLY GIRL I EVER LOVED FROM ME. I KNOW IT WASN'T NEBB'S FAULT, BUT THEN HE WENT AROUND BRAGGING ABOUT HOW HIS DAUGHTER TOSSED OVER THE MILLIONAIRE, RENROD.

WELL, BETSY NEBB WILL NEVER BE THE DAUGHTER OF A SENATOR. I'LL SPEND EVERY DIME I'VE GOT TO STOP THAT. I'LL CALL BOSS HEIT OFF THE JOB TOO. AT ONE TIME I USED MY INFLUENCE TO KEEP HIM FROM GETTING A FREE HAIRCUT AND A SUIT OF STRIPED CLOTHES.

Nothing Venture

by Patricia Wentworth

SYNOPSIS: Nan has taken refuge in her room from her husband's cruel doubt that she is the daughter of the famous explorer, Nigel Forsyth, and from his suspicion that she accuses Robert Leonard of murdering designs upon Jervis from mercenary motives. He is brought to his senses by a packet of letters from Nan's father, and goes to her room with apologies.

Chapter 25

F. F. SCENTS A THRILL

ERDINAND FRANCIS came down next day, arriving in time for dinner with an extraordinary assortment of luggage, including the yellow Gladstone bag, a canvas holdall, a uniform-case scraped and battered down to the bare tin, a typically British wash-basin with a leather top, and some assorted parcels. All except the parcels were plastered over with labels of every shape and color.

When dinner was over, they had coffee on the terrace, with the heat dropping out of the day and a breeze blowing in from the sea. Mr. Francis' bright brown eyes looked appreciatively from his coffee to a bed of flame-colored snapdragons, from the snapdragons to Nan in a green frock, and from Nan to Jervis.

"No more accidents?"

"There was a little dragging silence before Jervis said in a casual tone.

"Only the old bridge above the fall."

Ferdinand jerked around in his wicker chair.

"Not really? And it fell?"

"What a dramatic mind you've got, F. F.!" The timbers were rotten with the spray.

"Rotten were they—and with the spray?"

Jervis nodded.

"The bridge fell. And was there anyone on it when it fell?"

Jervis got up and stood half-turned away, looking down towards the ravine.

"Nan had a narrow escape," he said. "She'll tell you about it if you want to know."

Ferdinand certainly wanted to know. He looked at Nan, and found her changing color.

"There's nothing to tell, Mr. Francis."

"Oh, I imagine there's something."

"No, there isn't." Then as Jervis looked over his shoulder with a serene gleam in his eyes, she colored and said stammeringly, "I ran on to the bridge. It cracked, and then it fell. Jervis pulled me up."

"My eye!" said Ferdinand. "Can't someone do better than that? Haven't you got a few extra syllables about you, Mr. Jervis? I feel as if I could do with them if you have."

"Bran wouldn't cross it," said Nan only just above her breath. "I knew there was something wrong when Bran wouldn't cross it."

"I'm an inquisitive man," said Ferdinand, "and I'm feeling the strain of this conversation pretty badly. If someone doesn't tell me what happened soon, I'm going to be a first-aid case."

Jervis had been listening in a careless attitude, one knee on the balustrade. His sudden smile came and went again. It gave his face an extraordinary charm. He looked at Ferdinand with affection.

"Very nicely put, F. F. I'm afraid I only deal in dry facts—that's why

SATURDAY'S GAMES
Appleton at Fond du Lac.
East Green Bay at Oshkosh.
Marquette at Manitowoc.
Sheboygan at West Green Bay.

A LIGHT workout which featured individual attention for several of the boys and a signal drill for all, was held by Appleton high school football team last night. Another light workout is booked tonight and will complete practice for the game with Fond du Lac at Fond du Lac Saturday afternoon.

Two things appear certain about the Orange squad Saturday. They are that Don Johnston, back, and Dutcher, guard, will not be in the lineup and if they do show it will be for a short time. Johnston suffered an injured ankle last Friday and has been limping badly most of the week. Dutcher also has a bad ankle hurt during the East game last week.

Indications are that a shuffled Orange lineup may show Saturday, the shuffling resulting from the rapid improvement of several boys who in early season games were rated as reserves. Another change which resulted in shifting of a guard already have been made.

Schultz at Guard
Capt. Jack Bowers is certain to start at center tomorrow afternoon and will be flanked by Manier and Schultz, the latter having been moved over from tackle. Derfus, a reserve, has been coming along well in recent drills and may get a shot at one of the posts.

Bob Merrifield, a veteran campaigner who has been working at guard in the line, is being tackled and Justin Tillman will hold down his regular berth at left tackle. The starting ends Saturday may be Buesing and Krause, who have been understudying. They have improved fast of late and probably will be given a chance to start in the line. Vande Walle taking their places. End play last week against East was not satisfactory, Orange coaches have indicated, and they have spent a lot of time with the wingmen this week.

Ernie "Slice 'em" Ruppel has been named for the wing back position tomorrow and will do the kicking, passing and almost everything else. His booting at Green Bay last week was more than satisfactory and if he could control his passes Coach Joseph Shields would be thoroughly pleased. Ruppel carries an injured thumb sliced while attempting a wood carving a week ago but otherwise is in good condition.

Rooney, Burton Quarters
Vic Salm is booked to play the fullback position and do some choice smacking of opponents on offense while George Rooney and Cy Burton will alternate at quarterback. The boys have shown themselves fairly adept at getting the team up and down the field between the 20 yard lines but are at a loss when near the goal line.

They have a weakness in calling ordinary plays which gain good yardage when advancing down the field and then deciding some intricate maneuver instead of the old standard are needed to put the oval over the goal line.

Charles Campbell, a rookie on the squad, will get a lot of attention Saturday for he is to be given a place in the backfield and has a lot of work out for him.

In practice sessions this week he has smacked the line hard whether it be the reserves or Lawrence and Coaches Shields and Myron Selms are going to give him his big moment Saturday. His only weakness has been on knowledge of defensive play. Van Ryzin, a diminutive half who rambled for about 25 yards once at Green Bay last week also will get a chance tomorrow.

Fondy Is Strong
Fond du Lac is rated the best team in the league by virtue of three wins over other conference teams. It appears to have a well balanced squad and a gang that follows the ball every minute of the game. The winning margin in at least two of its games has resulted from close following of the oval.

Other Valley League games will see East Green Bay at Oshkosh where the Shipbuilders are going to come away victors and West Green Bay playing Sheboygan at the Bay. The Chairs look like winners.

Frank Walsh Plays In St. Louis Open
St. Louis —(P)— Chilly weather prevailed today as the St. Louis open golf tournament got under way at the Meadow Brook club with a galaxy of national stars among the 184 professionals and amateurs seeking stakes in the $2,500 event.

Eighty-five visiting golfers are competing in the tournament, including Tommy Armour, Walter Hagen, Horton Smith, Joe Kirkwood, John Golden, Abe Espinosa, Tony Manero, Frank Walsh, MacDonald Smith, Al Watrous, John Golden, Joe Turnesa, Jock Hutch-

Chaff'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

TWO Appleton football teams will invade foreign fields Saturday afternoon and naturally there will be a lot of folks, and a lot of second guessers sitting around awaiting the news when the P. C. extra hits the street along about 6 o'clock.

But the fans and s. g.'s shouldn't expect too much. The college and high school both have good looking squads but both have glaring weaknesses that make them vulnerable as a lone bid in clubs. And peculiarly their weaknesses are pretty much the same.

Lawrence still is minus a good quarter back after some four or five years. The last capable signal caller to trot the Vike, grid was Franny Bloomer away back in Rasmussen's first year here, and if one can recall how he handled the game that year with an ordinary player, but with keen insight into plays, one can appreciate the Vike weakness.

The high school also could use a clever quarter to advantage but being without it must plug along as best it can. Other weaknesses of the two teams also are backfield weaknesses.

If each squad had a couple smashing backs who had good detensive and offensive knowledge of the game they'd be ranking elevens.

As it is, well—let's wait until Saturday or even longer and hope the boys come through.

Anyway Coaches Clapp and Shields don't have to worry about injuries to gridders from airplane trips. A couple of Howard Jones boys at U. S. C. went for a ride the other day and "cranked" at 150 feet. None was hurt, however.

Eddie Kotal has gotten Mike Michalske to help coach his line at Stevens Point. Mike comes over a couple times a week. And as he usually brings some other Packer gridders along for the ride the Pointers are going to get a lot of coaching this fall. Eddie's not so dumb.

Al Wlater, Green Bay heavy-weight boxer who appeared on the Trib Golden Gloves team is going to turn pro. He's already had several offers to show in Milwaukee, Minneapolis and Chicago. Has been K. O'ed only once, from a member of the German amateur team last spring.

This from Cleon Walfoort at Sheboygan:

It is only fair that Coach Joe Shields of Appleton should be invited to a conference battle. The Oshkosh he has a formidable rival for the distinction of being the Valley's No. 1 showman. Mr. Hill has much of that sparkling quality which the late P. T. Barnum converted into $$$ and cents.

"A warm sun streamed through the skylight in the high school gymnasium as players of the two teams were dressing for the game Saturday. Whereupon Hill had his gridders strip to the waist and those sort of scenes of the ultra-violet rays or Vitamin B's or whatever it is a guy can get out of Old Sol.

"Once on the field, the Oshkosh players smeared dirt on their faces, an operation which had the effect of making them, altogether ferocious, not to say brutal. They further emphasized their ferocity by uttering guttural growls and grimacing fiercely as they pranced down the field in practice formations—looking considerably like the primitive characters in those of the yellow-brown race a big line and small but fast backfield. Last year the frosh and cadets played two tie games, one was 0-0 and the other 6 and 6.

Did you know that—the "gate" at the Lawrence game last week was the best—financially—in several years.

That the Green Bay sports scribe picks Appleton to beat Fond du Lac. Why?

Semi Pro Gridders Play Here Sunday
Appleton "Reds" Will Battle Neenah Bulldogs At Brandt Park

The Appleton "Reds" a semi-pro football team recently organized in the city will play its first home game Sunday afternoon at Brandt Park when it battles the Neenah Bulldogs. The game is scheduled to begin at 2:15.

Coached by Ralph Barfell, former Lawrence college griddler, the Reds were organized about a month ago and two weeks ago played Little Chute and held the runners up in the Northwestern league last year to a 6 and 6 tie. Lack of experience and knowledge of signals kept the Reds from showing better.

Barfell uses open formations which his players are beginning to master and the team hope to get places. Appleton boys make up the entire squad. Invitation has been extended to local gridders who wish to try out for the squad to report at Jones park at 6:30 any night except Saturday and Sunday.

The probable starting lineup will be Stark at center, E. Horn and Fredricks at guards, DeYoung and Weber tackles, Douglas and Camps ends. The backfield will show Frieders, Kroiss, Sanders and Barfell.

Baseball Season Isn't Dead Yet
Kaukauna Valley League Club Plays Oshkosh Old Timers

Bones will crack and muscles strain Sunday afternoon at Oshkosh when the Oshkosh Old Timers meet the Kaukauna team of the Fox River Valley League.

The Kaukauna team tied for the title in the league this year and is being played here because the Old Timers could not secure games with Doemels or the Cards. Doemels played the Old Timers one game and defeated them, while the Cards closed their season last Sunday.

Marty Lamers, Kaukauna manager, has promised to have Peacan on the mound for the Electric City team.

Manager Kriesel will have Hank Gietzen, Broeder and Brue Noel to divide the hurling for Oshkosh. Adam Felker is to do the receiving.

In the infield, Kriesel plans to use Chet Weed, Freddy Hackbarth, leading hitter of the valley loop; Harry Webb and Frank Horejs.

Pochojka, Fesch, Schneider, Bixler and Durham will work in the outfield.

Paul Duxer and Opie Below will be asked to do the umpiring. This will give Oshkosh, from the umpires to the players, a real old time aggregation.

Badgers Get Places On Gopher Grid Squad

Minneapolis —(P)— Thirty-four Minnesota football players were given definite ranking above the other squad members with whom they reported when practice began three weeks ago.

Coach Bernie Bierman, in naming them to his varsity or first squad, said the list was subject to change any time as the season progressed.

His varsity selections include Harold Haiden, LaCrosse, and Woodrow Nold, Milwaukee, centers; Bradbury Robinson, Baraboo, end; Erwin Burg, Milwaukee, quarterback; Francis Lund, Rice Lake, halfback.

Carroll, Vikes Open Big Four Grid Competition

Game Does Not Count in Standings; Ashman to Call Signals

LAWRENCE and Carroll colleges tomorrow will open football competition between the Big Four teams yet will not indulge in a conference battle. The two teams clash at Frame field, Waukesha, the game being the feature attraction of the annual Carroll college Mother's and Dad's day.

The battle does not count in the standings because it is the extra contest between the two schools, a practice that was started last year and which gives each a home game with the other. Last year the game at Waukesha was official and this season the game here Oct. 22, Lawrence homecoming, is the official game.

Carroll this year is under the direction of Glenn Thistlethwaite who retired last winter as Wisconsin grid coach. The team has played

FROSH AT DELAFIELD
Lawrence college yearling gridders also will be playing away from home Saturday for they are booked to battle St. John Military academy at Delafield Saturday afternoon. Coach Bill Schroeder will have charge of the yearling line. They have a big line and small but fast backfield. Last year the frosh and cadets played two tie games, one was 0-0 and the other 6 and 6.

one game this fall beating Milwaukee Teachers college by a 14 and 0 count last Friday.

Carroll Has Veterans
There is nothing small about the Pioneers who have a squad of about 33 men, plenty of beefy linemen and a lot of backfield veterans. Among the latter are Cap. Thiel, a clever quarterback, Jordan, a punter who can belt the ball a mile, and Dillingofski whose name seems to show up annually down at the Pioneer institution. Line veterans are Jensen, end, Calvert, tackle, Gomb and Mehl, guards.

Coach Percy Clapp has been experimenting with his squad since the St. Norbert fiasco last Saturday but the only changes probably will be in the backfield. He has been working on the high school team at end position, but the big fellow still needs a lot of drilling.

The backfield change will find Burt Ashman calling the signals with Hartwig also getting a chance. Peter Traas, Appleton youth, may get a chance to tote leather from a halfback position but otherwise the boys will remain the same as last week. Walters will work at fullback and Fahres, Gebhardt, Roemer and Capt. Smiley Feind will perform at the half.

Pfeiffer at Center
In the line Ed Pfeiffer probably will get the call at center because of his good work last week and will change off with Vedder, tall and lanky. Collins and Simonds look like first choices at guard with Hank Nagel filling in when they rest.

The tackle posts will be well taken care of by the Milwaukee duo of Ted Kriesel and John Vogel while Kuetli also will get service, especially if Vogel is worked at end. Roeder and Hessler should be the starting wingmen.

While the game doesn't mean anything in conference standings both Thistlethwaite and Clapp will want victories. Thistle is making his debut in Big Four competition and Clapp feels its about time his boys started to produce a few victories.

Junior Chamber of Commerce bowlers opened the season last night on Elk club alleys with the Razzers and Squawkers each winning three straight contests.

The Razzers defeated the Chiselers by one pin in the first game and won the 2nd easily with a 210 by Dr. Koch. Ritten paced the winners in the third game. Jennerjahn's 484 was high for the Chiselers.

Clark paced the Squawkers to their three game win over the Beefers. He rolled 158, 190, 169—516. Fumal had 149, 165, 189—503 for the other high score.

One of the Indiana university backfield is Ivan Fuqua, a sprint star.

Bays Must Beat Portsmouth to Retain Prestige

Defeat Would Give Ohio Fans Chance to Revive Old Argument

Green Bay — The briefest and most gusty rivalry currently enjoyed in the National professional football league will be resumed here Sunday afternoon, when the Packers and Portsmouth Spartans pick up a series of disagreements last aired in 1930.

Although the teams have met but three times, and one of these games was a practice affair, their rivalry already is assuming a traditional tinge. Sunday's contest which will begin at 2 o'clock at the City stadium, is whetted by any number of hard words east between the two organizations near the end of last season's playing schedules.

Called Bays Pikers
In probably no contest this year will the teams be so bent on "showing each other up" as in the Green Bay-Portsmouth mixup. Aspersions cast Bayward last season indicated that the Packers, who declined to visit Ohio for a post-season game with the second place Spartans were afraid to meet their redoubtable opponents on the professional gridiron. In fact, the Bays were referred to freely as the "Green Bay Pikers," and the "cheese champions."

This definitely placed the burden of proof upon the Packers, with the debating platform set for City stadium Sunday afternoon. Although there is no personal animosity existing between the respective team members, plenty of contempt is being manifested upon the other's claims, and the squad which leaves the field under the short end of the score will have something to live down in future Portsmouth-Green Bay games.

Will Watch Lumpkin
Packer fans who witnessed the game played here in October, 1930, when the black-haired Father Lumpkin rode roughshod into the Bay line for the most impressive sawing big game made that day, will be anxious to see the big fellow in action again. Lumpkin inspires a distinct inferiority complex in alien crowds, similar to that when Nagurski is "hot" for the Bears, or to that seen at its best advantage last season at Chicago, when Ernie Nevers led his Cardinals to a stirring conquest of the national champions.

Fresnel and Cavosie are two more backs whose work will stand plenty of watching. Dutch Clark, the Spartan all-American quarterback, will be making his first appearance on a Green Bay gridiron, as will George Christensen, the who performs in the line.

For sideline entertainment there will be offered the Wisconsin high school band, a crack musical unit, which will invade Green Bay along with a healthy delegation from the baseball city.

CAVOSIE FROM IRONWOOD
Ironwood, Mich. — Upper Michigan will be represented by a larger delegation than usual at the Packer game in Green Bay, Sunday, as hundreds of fans from this sector are planning to give John Cavosie, the Portsmouth fullback, a big hand.

Cavosie is an Ironwood product. He first gained gridiron fame as a member of the Luther Wright high school eleven when he dropped kicked for some 55 yards against the 19th-emping high team.

The Portsmouth fullback spends his off seasons here and has been showing his younger brother, Billy Cavosie all the tricks of the kicking game. The younger Cavosie is regular on the high school team which is coached by Chester Wiley, who formerly served in a similar capacity at Green Bay East high.

Newark Bears Win Little Series Title

Beat Minneapolis 8 and 7 With Home Run in The Ninth Frame

Minneapolis —(P)— Newark's Bears sped homeward today with the 1932 little world series honors among their memories and $17,347.65 jingling in their pockets.

A ninth inning home run was worth $5,782.02 to players sharing in the 23 way split for it added that much to the winners portion and defeated Minneapolis, American association champion 8 to 7 yesterday. It was Newark's fourth victory.

Marvin Owen, third sacker for the International League pennant winners made the run with one on base with a drive which floated far over the right field fence in Nicollet park. It assured Owen and his teammates of 60 per cent of the players purse of $28,913.10, leaving the Millers with $11,565.24 to split into 22 shares.

Don Brennan, big Newark right hander, who had not required relief in his last seventeen games was driven from the mound after five innings and three other pitchers followed him as the Millers clouted their way to a lead of 7 to 5 when the ninth inning began.

Johnny McAfee, working out at quarterback for a position on the Ohio State university squad, has played every position on a football team during his career.

Badger-Hawk Game Tops Weekend Football Card

MADISON —(P)— College football teams in Wisconsin start races for the championship in three conferences this weekend, with the Wisconsin-Iowa game at Camp Randall stadium headlining the week's grid card.

The opening Big Ten tilt of the season here Saturday has drawn unusual interest in view of the fact that it is the first conference game between the two schools.

Ripon and Beloit, Big Four teams, play non-conference foes. Ripon journeys to Decatur, Ill., to meet Millikin tonight while Beloit meets Northwestern college at Watertown Saturday.

Beloit defeated Dubuque in its first game of the season while Ripon was the loser against St. Thomas at St. Paul.

Marquette university's eleven, defeated by Wisconsin last week, makes a long trip to Omaha to meet Creighton, a traditional foe, for a game under the floodlights Saturday night. The Hilltoppers are given the edge over the Omaha team, although the Bluejays have proved a stumbling block for the best of Marquette's eleven in the past.

Four teacher college eleven's opened the championship race today. LaCrosse, victor in its preliminary game with Columbia, met Platteville on the latter's field. Platteville also won its preliminary game this season. The Milwaukee Teachers took on the Oshkosh Peds at Oshkosh for the other conference game today. The latter team split even in the preliminary games.

The Superior teachers meet the Aberdeen (S. D.) Teachers at Superior in a game tonight, while the Eau Claire Peds journey to Winona for a game against the Teachers under the floodlights. Superior won its first game and dropped the second while Eau Claire defeated Luther college in its only game thus far.

Victorious against McAlester and Northland college, the River Falls Teachers meet Stout at Menomonie Saturday in one of two tied conference tilts that day. Stout played a scoreless tie with the Mankato Teachers two weeks ago. Stevens Point, defeated by Carleton in its opening game, meets Whitewater on the latter's gridiron. Whitewater was also a loser in its opener against St. Viators.

The Michigan School of Mines meets Northland college at Ashland Saturday to complete the Wisconsin grid card.

White Sox to Train At Pasadena, Calif.
Chicago —(P)— The major league baseball season is hardly over before Harry Grabiner, vice president of the Chicago White Sox, gets down to business on the 1933 season.

Grabiner will leave Sunday for Pasadena, Cal., where the Sox will train next year, to look over the new camp and its accommodations.

The Hawkeyes' Invasion of Camp Randall stadium tomorrow will mark the first grid competition between the two schools since 1929 and the first game under Coaches Clarence Spears and Ossie Solem.

Coach Spears drove the Badgers through their last scrimmage yesterday, devoting most of the session to polishing the offense with emphasis on pass plays. The running attack looked much improved but whether it will function against the heavy Iowa line is a matter of conjecture.

Almost a brand new forward line will be thrown against the Hawks. The weakness of the Badgers in the line was demonstrated in the Marquette game and Coach Spears took immediate steps to correct it. The chief move saw Harvey Kramhold, regular guard, shifted to center where he is expected to play tomorrow against Iowa's touted Magnusen.

"Buckets" Goldenberg, who played quarter last Saturday, will be at tackle this week. "Moon" Molinaro's showing against Marquette earned him a regular place at the other tackle post. Milton Kummer, Sheboygan, probably will start at right guard in place of Capt. Greg Kabat who was shifted back to his old post after a try at center.

Mario Pacetti, stalwart Kenosha sophomore, has apparently cinched the job at left guard while Dick Haworth and John Schneller are the best bets for starters at the ends. Nello Pacetti at quarter, Walter McGuire and Joe Linfor at the halfback positions and Hal Smith at fullback is the probable starting backfield.

Tom Fontaine, sophomore, and Jim Donaldson and Milo Wilson, reserves last year, showed good form in the backfield yesterday and will undoubtedly see action against Iowa.

Orange Netters Will Settle Title Saturday
The Appleton high school tennis champion for 1932-33 will be decided Saturday if plans of Orange coaches directing the sport are carried out and the weather doesn't interfere. With one quarter finals match, Robert DeLong vs. Ralph Scherbel to be played today, the semi finals will be played tomorrow morning and the finals in the afternoon.

The winner of the DeLong-Scherbel match will battle Francis Hauch in the lower bracket while Art Remley and Herman Luick meet in the upper bracket semi final match.

Thirty-seven boys entered the tournament which started last week to find a successor to Bob Shannon as school champion.

Pittsburgh — Frankie Bojarski, Erie, Pa., stopped Ray Van Hook, Pontiac, Mich., (6).

Harold Ely, 275-pound tackle on the Chicago Bears pro football team, is being referred to as the "heaviest active football player in the world." He played at the University of Iowa.

Leonard Gets Biggest Test In Garden Ring

Battles Jimmy McLarnin Tonight; Vancouver Boy Is Favorite

BY HERBERT W. BARKER Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK —(P)— Back into pugilism's "big money" crash-landes Benny Leonard tonight in what may be the last stand of his courageous fight to regain the fistic heights he once knew.

The former lightweight champion, now 36 years old and more than a little bald, tackles rough, tough and, before everything else, young Jimmy McLarnin, belting welterweight from Vancouver, in a 10 round bout in Madison Square Garden.

McLarnin, a 25-year-old "veteran" of the ring wars and known for several years as one of the hardest punchers in the business, rates a 2 to 1 favorite in the betting despite his unimpressive showing against Lou Brouillard in his last appearance here. McLarnin took a sound trouncing in that bout but most experts concede Leonard little chance against him tonight.

Again In Condition
Benny has bowled over a score of minor opponents in his comeback campaign, shoved his weight from 180 pounds to a pound or two over 150, replaced flabby tissue with solid muscle and generally fought himself into first-rate condition but the "old master" is not the Leonard of lightweight championship days.

Apparently his only chance of beating McLarnin lies in his ability to steer clear of the dynamite that lurks in both of Jimmy's hands. Some observers grant Leonard a fair chance to win if he can stay the limit but they're by no means sure Benny will be able to travel the full distance.

McLarnin has been regarded as the uncrowned champion first of the lightweights and then of the welterweights but he cracked up his hands about a year ago and was on the sidelines for months before his losing battle with Brouillard. Jimmy was obviously rusty in that match but it also was noticeable that he did very little punching with his right hand, previously his best weapon.

If Jimmy really has lost some of the "kick" in his punches then Leonard conceivably might win through sheer ring intelligence. He has lost his speed and his punch but he still has intelligence.

The nickname of Texas Christian university athletic teams is Horned Frogs, so the freshmen are "Polly-wogs."

Duke University's second string football team outweighs the number one aggregation.

New York—(P)—A brisk but short-lived selling flurry sent the stock market into another slump today, but extreme losses of 2 to more than 5 points in many prominent issues were partially reduced in the last hour. Fresh selling appeared in the last few minutes, however, and the final tone was heavy. The turnover approximated 2,400,000 shares.

Considerable liquidation was reported based on the belief that autumn business revival had about reached its normal peak, particularly in railroad traffic. There were also some estimates on the forthcoming unfilled tonnage statement of U. S. Steel corporation, which placed the expected rise at substantially less than the "Iron Age" figure of 100,000 tons. One estimate was an increase of 50,000 tons or less. In addition, reports were current that the automobile industry, after its brief upswing had again started downward, with sales, which for a time had been going into higher priced cars, being diverted in the past fortnight to the lower priced divisions again.

Short Supplies React Upon Hogs

Buyers Active in Spite of Poor Outlook for Dressed Pork

Chicago—(P)—Local packers assembled their droves of hogs yesterday at the lowest cost in 15 weeks. Average cost of all hogs on the worst slump of the season experienced in Thursday's late trade was $3.61, a drop of $1.40 a hundred weight from the high point of the year attained three months ago. Shortened supplies today brought about a quick reaction and top hogs were saved from going under the $4.00 figure on the present movement.

Recognizing the high potential value of swine at current prices, even in the face of a continued poor outlook for dressed pork, buyers swarmed into the market early today and lifted values to the high point of the previous day. Active buying of 160 to 280 lb. hogs at $3.90-4.00 was largely 10-15 above yesterday's average and light packing sows at $3.40-3.50 recovered all of their losses. Packers had 4,000 hogs direct, but took a keen interest in the market.

No further attempt was made to revise prices downward in the cattle division today. Declines for the week aggregated 75c to $1.00 on most grades, with the high point of the week being reached by packers. Fresh arrivals were limited to 1,000 head of matured cattle and 500 calves, and few buyers visited the selling pens during the early forenoon. A good clearance was in prospect without further price changes.

Producers of five muttons have had a difficult time this week trying to keep supplies within trade requirements. As the needs of packers contracted further, current of supplies, especially those billed from distant ranges, were hard to hold back, calling for expensive lay-overs at feeding stations. However, offerings of 8,000 today showed how well the task was managed and prices have not suffered much. Early receipts included 700 lambs billed to packers, and first transactions indicated a steady scale of prices.

Grains Again Hit New Low Levels For This Season

Profit-Taking by Bears Constitutes Only Important Buying

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
(Associated Press Market Editor)

Chicago—(P)—Subjected to severe stop loss selling for the third day in succession, wheat, corn and rye values plunged today to new depths for the season.

About the only important buying of wheat futures came from profit-taking on the part of operators who had sold higher up. Brokers said the selling of wheat on stop loss orders today was general, and represented speculators in all sections of the country.

Wheat closed unsettled 1-1/2 under yesterday's finish, Dec. 49-50, May 54-55, corn varying from 1/2 decline to 1-1/2 advance, Dec. 28, May 31, oats unchanged to a shade higher, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5 cents.

Wheat put stress on a dearth of supplies. It was cited that latest estimates from 35 countries showed 46,000,000 bushels increase of wheat production in the northern hemisphere this season as compared with last year. In addition, the carryover was figured at 1,000,000 bushels larger than last year's big total of 656,000,000 bushels.

House Clerk Lists Loans for August By Finance Group

Report Published Despite Objections From Corporation's Chief

284, it said. This included $240,000 cancelled by the State Life Insurance company of Indianapolis.

Applications for loans received during August numbered 1,151, with repayments in the month totalling $35,241,799.

Loans to bank and trust companies included $39,290,150 to aid in reorganization or liquidation of closed banks.

Agree On Loans
In addition, the report said, the corporation had outstanding on Aug. 31, agreements to make loans totalling $875,000 upon the performance by applicants of specified conditions. Of loans authorized to railroads, $2,170,500 is reimbursable from the railroad credit corporation, when funds are available.

The report showed the following advances had been authorized to railroads at 6 per cent interest:

Ashley, Drew and Northern Railway Co. $400,000.

Boston and Maine railroad $1,200,000.

Central of Georgia Railway Co. $827,450.

Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway $753,500.

Chicago Great Western railroad $1,289,000.

Florida East Coast railway (receivers) $50,350.

Mobile and Ohio Railroad (Ernest E. Norris, receiver of) $1,070,599.

New York, Chicago and St. Louis railroad $1,400,000.

St. Louis Southwestern railway $40,450.

Tennessee Central railway $147,700.

Wabash Railway (Walter Franklin and Frank Nicodemus as receivers) $457,000.

Whitcomb Falls and Southern railroad $400,000.

ASSURED FUND
Madison—(P)—Milwaukee-co officials were assured today at a conference with Governor LaFollette and his secretary, Thomas Duncan that the county will be paid the $500,000 it anticipated from the balance of an unemployment relief loan which the state has coming from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

The controversy between Milwaukee and the state over the county's right to hold up state-owned collections which were tied up in closed or suspended banks does not affect the payment of the relief funds, the officials were told.

Duncan said that this controversy is to be settled by the state supreme court and regardless of the outcome the state will pay Milwaukee's $500,000 share of the relief funds as soon as the money is available.

The R. F. C. loaned the state a total of $3,000,000 of which Milwaukee was to receive half, it was to be paid in two equal installments. The first $1,500,000 was received several weeks ago and Milwaukee-co got $1,000,000 of it. As soon as the first allotment is used up the state will receive the balance of $1,500,000 from the Federal Reserve bank at Chicago. Duncan said he thought this money would be forthcoming in two or three weeks.

He advised the Milwaukee-co officials to hold up regular bills for a period of 30 days or so if that appears necessary to preserve the treasury position until the money arrives.

Duncan said that the total $3,000,000 loan probably will have been spent by the communities receiving it by Dec. 1. The state then plans to go before the Reconstruction Finance corporation board for another $3,000,000 which the corporation indicated it would lend the state if present unemployment conditions persist.

Clouds and Showers Forecast Tomorrow

Increasing cloudiness which may bring showers and a slight drop in the temperature are the weather forecasts for tonight and Saturday. Winds will be moderate and from the southwest. The rise in temperatures noted yesterday have continued and last night and today have been the warmest days of the week. The mercury last night went down to 46 degrees, 12 above the night before. At noon today the thermometer registered 64 degrees.

Brother, Sisters Chief Heirs of Smith Reynolds

Albert Walker to Get $50,000 Under Terms of Will Written in 1931

"Safeguard" Clause
One of the longest articles in the will is understood to be directed at preventing any possibility of anyone attempting to contest its validity or alter its provisions.

There is reported to be one sentence directing that if any person mentions as a beneficiary even so much as asserts a belief before a judicial body that this document is not Reynolds' last will and testament, the other provisions of the will be carried out as though that person had not been mentioned.

It was learned that the will was made in August of 1931, the apparent motive for making it at that time being that young Reynolds was within a few days to leave by steamer for a long and hazardous solo flight from England to China. He did sail a few days after the will was drawn, but fell ill in England and had to return home. Before he started again, in December, he was divorced from his first wife. So far as is known, however, he made no change in the disposition of his estate, either because of this divorce or after his marriage to Miss Holman, which occurred at the termination of his last eastern flight.

Young Reynolds' estate consisted largely of trust funds established for him by his father and mother before they died and the principal of which had not yet come to him at the time of his death. Similar to the trust funds established for his brother, Richard, and his sisters, Mary Reynolds Babcock and Nancy Reynolds Bagley, the three chief beneficiaries of Smith Reynolds' will.

The share of each of the Reynolds children from trust funds left them by their parents has been variously estimated at from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000.

Gold Battle Brought Big Crisis in U. S.

Hoover Speech Indicates Bitter Struggle to Maintain Standard

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—President Hoover's revelation of the crisis reached last winter with reference to the gold standard has revived discussion of trying moments in which partisan politics was cast aside and all elements here worked to prevent a disaster.

This statement which came somewhat as a surprise was that part of the Des Moines speech in which Mr. Hoover said he had been advised by the secretary of the treasury that within two weeks, unless emergency measures were put into effect, America might be forced off the gold standard.

The truth is nobody knew what would happen. There were a gold panic and, while the gold standard is a matter of legislation and can only be officially suspended by act of congress, nevertheless the actual suspension would have occurred if America's gold resources had been drained.

There were two forces which were draining gold. One was the hoarder—the American who put his gold into hiding and the American who exported his gold to Switzerland or Holland or some other country—and the other was the European speculator or investor who was selling American securities and demanding gold in payment.

Embargo Discussed
At one time, the Europeans held three billion dollars worth of American securities and this was gradually reduced by sales to about one billion dollars. Europeans were saying they intended to sell that billion dollars of securities and demand gold of American banks. The discussion at the time among New York banks was whether this should be permitted and some suggestions were received by the government here from different sources to the effect that a gold embargo might be declared which would forbid exportation of gold.

But the decision was made suddenly to get the existing law amended so as to permit government bonds to be used as a basis for insurance of currency instead of eligible commercial paper and this increased the amount of gold available as a base of currency. The Glass-Steagall law was rushed through congress and saved the situation.

It is considered now to be doubtful whether the Europeans would have sold a billion dollars worth of securities and thus forced prices down so low that before they could sell such an enormous quantity they might be faced with only a fourth of that sum as possible proceeds.

The whole episode will for a long time no doubt be a subject of academic study and while it may never be proved whether America would or would not have been forced off the gold standard, the fact remains that it was a tight place and the government was able to survive the crisis and come through in a stronger gold position than any other nation.

France and other European countries failed to take into account the fact that tourist trade would be smaller and that the normal balance of trade in favor of the United States would begin to draw gold back to America. Since June $275,000,000 in gold has come back and each day records more. The gold crisis is so long past that it now can be discussed as one of the big battles of the depression which turned into a substantial victory for America.

A man is taller when he is lying down than when he is standing. Dr. Carroll E. Palmer has found after conducting investigations at Johns Hopkins University.

Wisconsin industries have furnished the people of this country with many products that have been of benefit to humanity.

One of the finest of these products of home industry is the Buckstaff Burial Vault. It provides comfort for the bereaved, and knowledge that their departed are afforded lasting protection from ground waters and burrowing animals.

This protection adds only moderately to the cost of the funeral, but the value of the lasting comfort it provides is immeasurable.

France Undecided About Invitation to Parley

Paris—(P)—The foreign office said Thursday the French government had not decided what kind of a reply it will make to the British proposal for a four-power conference to consider Germany's demand for arms equality and that the matter was still being studied.

No great enthusiasm for such a conference was shown in official quarters but it was said France wanted to know whether Germany wanted the meeting and what her program would be before a decision is made.

The French attitude, it was said, is that if the conference is held it ought to study the juridical aspects of the question and that the smaller interested powers, such as Poland, Belgium and Czechoslovakia, should participate.

Police Cut Links Far
Seattle—Olympic golf and country club players are breathing easy now that at least one two-stroke handicap has been cut off their cards.

An 18-year-old youth, Arnold Bjerkager, one of a band who have been dashing onto the course and stealing balls, riding away in an old car before they could be caught, was finally captured. He spent the night in jail, charged with trespassing. (A lost ball costs a player two strokes).

Shrubs for Spring Beauty Should be Planted Now

There are many reasons for setting out shrubs in the fall instead of waiting until spring. The one reason, however, that is most convincing—the one that changes fanatical musing to eager activity—is the pleasant anticipation of the picturesque garden that will be yours next year.

Shrubs are the backbone of the planting so give them first consideration when you plan the development of your outdoor living room.

Can you imagine spring coming and going without Lilacs to cast their spell over your garden? If you haven't several kinds of this gracious old friend, plant them now. The Lilac (Syringa) season is all too short, but by proper selection of varieties you can extend their blooming period several weeks.

Most familiar of all is the ever-popular Syringa vulgaris with its lovely clusters of sweetly scented purple flowers. Syringa vulgaris alba is a sister variety that grows slenderly upright and has blooms of white instead of purple. Closely following are the Chinese and Persian varieties. Syringa persica and Syringa chinensis (the latter is also known as Syringa rothomagensis, the Rouen Lilac) both have unusually large plumes of ex-

Dog Guides Wounded Man Out of Michigan Woods

Menominee, Mich.—(P)—A mongrel dog Tuesday was credited with saving the life of Raymond Woods, 22. While he was hunting in a heavily forested part of the county, Woods' gun was accidentally discharged and shot shattered his left hand. Dazed, he lost his direction. He reached a clearing finally by following the barking of his dog.

Penguins are found only in the Antarctic region.
